GERMANS GAIN AT VERDUN

Crown Prince Advances on Both Sides of Meuse, Entering Cumieres; French Hold Douaumont

By C. F. BERTELLI.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 24. — Important gains for the Germans were admitted by the French War Office today.

French trenches on both sides of the Meuse River, in the Verdun sector, were captured by the Germans in another series of great infantry assaults last night.

The Germans have penetrated the village of Cumieres, on the left bank of the river.

Hundreds of big guns hurled tons of steel against the French positions before the enemy infantry was sent forward.

The bombardment of Le Mort Homme (Dead Man Hill) was particularly violent.

The Germans extended their attacking operations northwest of Verdun, assaulting the French positions east of Dead Man Hill. These onsets carried the Crown Prince's soldiers into the village of Cumieres, on the left bank of the Meuse, and also put the Germans in possession of a trench.

GREAT GERMAN LOSSES.

However, the Teutons paid dearly for these gains, the official communique stating that the German losses were enormous.

To the east of the Meuse the Germans drove vigorously against the French positions at Haudromont

SEE PEACE MOVE BY BERLIN

Report That Famous German Diplomat Is Coming to Washington Regarded as Most Significant

Washington, May 24.—Force was given to the many rumors of an early peace by the dispatch from London today which said that Prince von Buelow would shortly come to Washington on a special mission.

The London cable gave the Exchange Telegraph Company as authority for the news.

There were two versions, one that the Prince is to come on a special mission from the Kaiser, and the other that he will replace Ambassador von Bernstorff as envoy to this country.

In either case, opinion here held that his coming is indicative of a German intention to press for an early peace.

Prince von Buelow has, from the beginning, been associated with Germany's peace moves. He went to Switzerland a year ago and has there conferred with many neutral statesmen. It is believed he has unofficially met representatives of France and England as well.

Recently he was recalled from Switzerland and spent several days with the Kaiser at the Verdun front, and it is believed that in this conference Germany's peace plans were thoroughly outlined.

Whether the Prince comes to replace Ambassador von Bernstorff, or on a special mission from the Kaiser, his presence here will put in this country the man who of all others has personified Germany's peace intentions.

The Prince is a former chancellor of the German empire, and is closely in touch with the Kaiser's views on all matters of national policy.

It was his work as Ambassador to Italy during the early days of the war which prevented Italy's declaring war on Germany, it is believed. Shortly after his recall from Italy, he went to Switzerland, where he has remained till recently.

Sargent School Girls Will March for Preparedness

Great Rush by Citizens to Join Roster for Saturday

Girls from the Sargent School of Physical Education in the formation in which they will parade on Saturday. This will their first public appearance.

MACNEILL, SINN FEIN LEADER, CONVICTED

London, May 24.—John MacNeill, president of the Sinn Fein volunteers and professor of law in the National University, was today found guilty at Dublin of complicity in the Irish uprising by a court martial. He will be sentenced later in the week.

That Sir Roger Casement held the view that Ireland could not be independent and have home rule until England was overthrown by a stronger European power was brought out today when Captain L. R. White, D. S. O., was tried at Aberdare charged with offenses under the defence of the realm act. White was found guilty and sentenced to three months.

Sensational statements relative to White's connection with the Irish rebels were made in court. Unusual interest was attached to the case by reason of the prominence of the prisoner. He is a son of the late Sir George White, a field marshal in the British army.

White had a good army record, it was said, but during the past year or

Many Organizations Enroll Today to Parade in Big Patriotic Demonstration.

Enrollments for the citizens' preparedness parade to be held in Boston on Saturday poured in so rapidly today at parade headquarters, No. 42 Broad street, that the 60,000 mark was passed and enlistments were well under way toward the 75,000 goal. All applications must be in by 5 p. m. today, as Lieutenant-Colonel Beaumont B. Buck, U. S. A., the chief marshal, is to arrange his roster tonight. It will probably be made public tomorrow.

One of the features entered today was that in which Hollis Adnah Fahrney of No. 45 Dana street, Cambridge, is to impersonate a "Child Columbia" on a miniature float drawn by ponies, the whole symbolic of the children of Massachusetts. Two buglers from Troop A will act as heralds.

Women's organizations were prominent in today's entries. Mrs. Edith W. Lind of No. 146 Oxford street, Cambridge, reported that 100 women in uniform would represent the Women's Auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans.

The Women's Relief Corps will have 100 in line under Mrs. Annie P. Atwood of Whitman.

The Boston art students will turn out fifty under Vesper L. George. Leo Daley reported today that he would lead 500 students from Boston College. Other entries today were:

Fifty-Fifty Club, fifty members in uniform, R. G. Kilduff, marshal; Swedish Glee Club, forty members in white hats, under J. Albert Johnson, will sing "America" en route; Chalmers Motor Company, forty, under O. L. Halsey; F. A. Foster Company, inc., thirty-six in uniform, under H. F. Wyeth; H. N. Hartwell & Son employes; Navy League of the United States, 100, under Lincoln C. Cummings; County Commissioners of Massachusetts, thirty, under L. S. Gould; Massachusetts General Hospital, 100 under Dr. F. A. Washburn, superintendent; Walworth Manufacturing Company employes, 100, T. W. Little, marshal; National Security League, Colonel Peabody. Massachusetts Commandery Military Order Loyal Legion, fifty, under Major Higginson.

Charles A. Price, in charge of floats, bannery and markers, today emphasized the necessity for early purchase of flags. He said:

"While there is no flag famine it is true that there is a shortage in certain small sizes. However, retail stores are well supplied and small flags are selling cheaply in most stores. Individuals and organizations ought to buy their flags early however. With such a tremendous demand in a few days a serious shortage might occur."

Two changes in the route have confused the general public. Many inquiries were received at headquarters today concerning the exact route. It follows:

Start from corner of Arlington and Beacon streets, pass up Beacon and continue down School street to Washington, to State, to Broad, to High, to Summer, to Lincoln, to Kneeland, Eliot, Park square, Columbus avenue, Berkeley and disband through Chandler, Appleton and Warren avenue.

One of the interesting features of the parade will be the appearance of the students of the Sargent School for Physical Education, as it will be the first public appearance of the student body of the school.

O'MEARA HEADS POLICE FOR 5 YEARS MORE

Governor McCall today sent to the Executive Council the name of Stephen O'Meara, reappointed to be police commissioner of Boston.

The Council suspended the rules and confirmed the appointment at once.

Commissioner O'Meara has been in office since 1906. The present appointment is for a five-year term at $6,000 a year.

Commissioner O'Meara will address the members of the Boston Social Club, composed of patrolmen, in a special meeting in Horticultural Hall this evening. It will be the first time he has talked to this organization during the ten years he has been at the head of the Boston police. Admission to the hall will be by police badge.

Favor Morning Supreme Court.

A bill to permanently transfer the sittings of the Massachusetts Supreme Court from the Pemberton Square courthouse to the State House was reported in the Senate today by the Legislative Committee on State House and Libraries. The transfer was recommended by Governor McCall.

"STUDIO MATE" IN TEARS

Mrs. Horton Snubbed by Waite; Identify Sender of Mysterious "K. Adams" Message at Trial

By International News Service.

New York, May 24.—Mrs. Clara Louise Peck Waite today took the stand to testify against her husband, Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, in the latter's fight for life on a charge of having murdered Mrs. Waite's father, John E. Peck.

As the little figure in black took the stand Waite leaned forward eagerly, and then suddenly recollecting himself, settled back and attempted to assume his attitude of indifference. He was not entirely successful, however for his left hand crept to his mouth and he fingered his lips nervously for several seconds.

He finally gained control of himself and assumed his disinterested attitude.

The State's questions led her almost immediately to the happenings of the last few days of her father's life. Despite visible efforts to control herself her voice broke several times during the recital of the intimate details of the last illness of her father.

TELLS OF OPPORTUNITIES.

Mrs Waite told all the opportunities Dr. Waite had of handling her father's food beginning with the Thursday night prior to his death.

Step by step she described all the happenings of the following two days, saying that Dr. Waite went out early on Saturday morning and returned about noon bringing with him "a rather large bottle with some white stuff in it."

The statement about the bottle was

VICTORY FOR HUB JURIST

Supporters Confident Senate Will Confirm Brandeis Nomination; Straight Party Lineup

By International News Service.

Washington, May 24.—The Senate Judiciary Committee, after weeks of consideration, today, by a vote of ten to eight, decided to make a favorable report to the Senate on the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis to be associate justice of the Supreme Court.

The result was a straight party vote the ten Democrats voting to favorably report the nomination, while the eight Republicans voted against such action.

The roll call showed committee members voting as follows.

For Brandeis—Culberson, Overman, Hoke Smith, Shields, O'Gorman, Ashurst, Reed, Walsh, Chilton and Fletcher.

Against Brandeis—Clark, Borah, Cummins, Works, Nelson, Brandegee, Dillingham and Sutherland.

Senator Chilton of West Virginia, chairman of the sub-committee which investigated Brandeis' record, was selected to make the committee's report. An effort will be made to have the Senate take up the appointment early next week.

The unanimous vote of the Democratic members of the committee led Brandeis' friends to predict certain victory on the Senate floor.

The rejection of George F. Rubles as member of the Federal Trade Commission is believed to have reacted to Brandeis' favor.

The refusal of the Senate to confirm Rubles stirred administration leaders to vigorous activity during the past few days and resulted in rallying many votes to Brandeis' support.

Today's decisive action of the Judiciary Committee was accomplished in less than fifteen minutes.

forest and at Douaumont, sustaining heavy sacrifices of human life.

West of Douaumont a few French trenches were stormed, but all attacks against that section of Fort Douaumont held by the French were repulsed.

These counter attacks were made with heavy forces of troops and with utter disregard for human life.

In the intervals of infantry actions the big guns on both sides were flaming throughout the night, their thunder reverberating up and down the Meuse Valley.

BATTLE RAGES ALL NIGHT.

For seventy-two hours, by day and by night, the Germans have been hurling huge forces against the French positions at most points, however, the French forces of General Nivelle stood like a stone wall, meeting rebuff upon rebuff with the most conspicuous bravery.

Then began the great battle of Verdun still raging with the utmost intensity.

The text of the official communique follows:

"In Champagne, with the help of an outburst of gas, the Germans attempted to reach our lines in the region west of Navarin farm, after a curtain of fire threw the enemy back into his own trenches.

"On the left bank of the Meuse the Germans launched a powerful offensive action during the night east of Le Mort Homme. After a hand-to-hand battle the enemy penetrated, at the cost of heavy losses, the village of Cumieres and one of our trenches immediately to the west.

GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS.

"New reinforcements having arrived, it is apparent that the efforts forces employed by the enemy in the region of Le Mort Homme and Hill 21 number more than three divisions (48,000 men).

"On the right bank artillery preparations and infantry attacks followed each other with great violence in the region of Haudromont and Douaumont. Despite the fury of the attack the enemy, who had on record for human life, succeeded in gaining a foothold only in some small elements east of the fort, (Douaumont). All his efforts against our positions to the west and against the fort itself were shattered by our fire.

"On the Woevre region there was a bombardment in the sectors of Ilix and Moulainville.

Report Repulse of British Attacks

By International News Service.

Berlin, May 24.—On the Artois front the British have made fresh attacks in the sector of Givenchy, but these were repulsed, the German War Office announced today.

Heavy losses were suffered by the English troops, it was stated.

"The British assaults on the Givenchy line were part of the offensive campaign being waged around Arras and La Bassee in an effort to break through and compel the Germans to evacuate Lens.

"The village of Cumieres, north west of Verdun, was captured by the Germans in a storm attack last night. Three hundred prisoners were taken there.

"The text of the official report follows:

"West front—Southwest of Givenchy strong English forces attacked our new positions several times. Only a few scattered troops gained entrance and they fell in hand-to-hand fighting. Otherwise all attacks were repulsed. The English suffered very heavy losses.

"Small detachments near Hulluch and Ploegsteert were also repulsed.

"Southeast of Nouvron and northwest of Moulin Sontouvent and in the district north of Prunay, weak French attacks failed.

"On the left bank of the Meuse German infantry and machine gun fire repulsed an attempted advance by the French on the southwestern slope of Le Mort Homme (Dead Man Hill).

Thuringian troops captured by storm the village of Cumieres. More than 200 French prisoners were taken, including eight officers.

"East of the Meuse the enemy repeated furious attacks in the Douaumont region, suffering very severe losses.

"The ground we had lost temporarily was almost completely recaptured, together with more than 200 prisoners.

"The engagement east of the Meuse continues with heavy bombardments by both sides.

"East front—In the vicinity of Pulkarn, southeast of Riga, German troops drove the Russians from a trench lying between both lines. Sixty-eight prisoners were taken.

"Balkan front—There is nothing to report."

WAR SUMMARY

The terrific fighting north of Verdun today resulted in German gains more important than any they have made in a single day for three months.

The German troops entered the village of Cumieres, southeast of Dead Man's Hill; they captured trenches at Dead Man's Hill and at Hill 301; and they took trenches from the French in the Douaumont region.

This much is admitted in the French official report. The French say they still hold the recaptured portion of Fort Douaumont. The Berlin bulletin yesterday said this whole fort was firmly in German hands.

The Austrian advance into Italy continues unchecked. The advance seems, if anything, to gain momentum, as yesterday's Austrian bulletin reported the capture of Borgo and the crossing of the frontier beyond—a five-mile gain in one day. The Italians admit this with[illegible]al to their prepared positions on their own territory. Austrians are now attacking Arsiero, base of Italian operations, and a town of some importance, about five miles within Italian territory.

The Russian fronts, both in Poland and the Caucasus, were quiet today, and there was nothing from the British force.

ITALIANS CONTINUE RETREAT

By International News Service.

Vienna, May 24.—Italian reinforcements have failed to stem the advance of the Austro-Hungarian troops in southern Tyrol. In spite of the terrific obstacles afforded by the mountains, the big guns are being rolled forward behind the armies and a continuous bombardment is being kept up by the Teutin troops, which is particularly severe between the Astico and Piave rivers.

Fortifications defending the Italian town of Asiago are being battered to pieces under the shelling of the big guns.

Asiago is flanked by the Astico, Sugana and Brenta valleys. It is eight miles from the border and has been used by the Italians as a base and concentration point.

Italian prisoners say that King Victor Emmanuel went to the front in the hope that his presence would inspire the troops to extreme efforts in attempts to check the Austrian advance.

So far all the fighting has been in mountain districts, and the task of the defenders the advantage. The Austrians, despite their gains, have from 40 to 50 miles to descend to the Adriatic sector before they reach the edge of the Venetian plain. This plain is traversed by two lateral lines of railways that supply the Italian armies on the Isonzo front.

The northern line passes through Verona and Vicenza, the southern line runs through Rovigo and Padova. The opinion has been expressed by many military critics that the real objective of the Austrians is the Verona-Vicenza line.

Italian Defences Crumble, Rome Admits

By International News Service.

Rome, May 24.—Austro-Hungarian troops in their offensive against the Italians between Lake Garda and the Lavarone plateau are using forty-two centimetre guns, the most powerful artillery known.

The granite-walled mountain barriers of the Italians are crumbling under the pounding of these monster guns, but the spirit of the Italian troops remain unbroken.

Having advanced to Italian territory at some points east of the Adige Valley The Austro-Hungarians have now massed strong forces in the sector of Riva at the upper end of Lake Garda and military critics now look for a series of assaults against the Italian front in that region.

In the sector of the Lugana the heavy artillery fire of the Austrians compelled a withdrawal of the advanced lines of the Italians, but the retirement was carried out in good order.

The Austrians have massed an enormous amount of artillery along the right wing of their front. Between the Adamello sector and Borgo they are believed to have 4,000 guns of various calibre. Their ammunition supply seems inexhaustible judging by the heavy waste of shells.

The airmen on both sides are extremely active and numerous sky battles have taken place above the Tyrolese Alps.

LONG TRAINS BEAR VERDUN WOUNDED

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, May 24.—An idea of the tremendous losses being sustained by the Germans on the Verdun front is gained from the fact that thirty-nine long trains, filled with severely wounded German soldiers, passed through Luxemburg on Tuesday. So heavy have been the German losses in the fighting since Saturday that forces were sent to the Verdun front from the Argonne to fill the gaps.

Hear Bancroft on Bill to Look Into 'L' Affairs

General William A. Bancroft, president of the Boston Elevated, in setting forth the Elevated's financial plight, to the legislative Committee on Rules today, expressed the hope that the present five-cent fare may be retained, that there will be no curtailment of transfer privileges and no necessity for establishing fare zones.

General Bancroft advocated the submission for consideration by the Legislature of the bill urged by Governor McCall for the appointment of a special commission to investigate the monetary drought of the big transportation corporations.

Says Big U-Boat Is on Way to U.S. with Rich Cargo

By International News Service.

New York, May 24.—From a source which ships news reporters declare they have always found reliable, the remarkable announcement comes that within a few days New York would witness the arrival of a German supersubmarine, inaugurating a passenger, mail and freight service between Germany and the United States.

The story given to the ship news men by their informant, who required that his name should not be used, was:

"The submarine now bound for America is 450 feet long and carries German mails, ten passengers and a fifty-ton cargo of valuable freight. It is one of a fleet of five which will endeavor to thwart Great Britain's mastery of the seas.

"The cargoes coming from Germany will consist of chemicals and dye-stuffs. Passengers from Germany will pay $5,000 each."

'YOUTHFUL LOVE LED TO LAMBERT TRAGEDY' SAYS DOROTHY DIX

By Dorothy Dix.

Waukegan, Ill., May 24.—Today I gathered a bunch of violets that had bloomed on the very spot in Helm Woods where Marian Lambert was found dead in the snow last February.

I was guided to the place by Verne Jackson, a little schoolgirl chum of Marian Lambert's, who will be one of the most important witnesses at the trial, for she saw William Orpet on the morning when he held his last fatal interview with his youthful sweetheart.

Verne Jackson is a pretty little girl, with wide eyes and a splendid mane of tawny hair that she wears in a heavy braid down her back, and as she swung her schoolbooks by their leather straps she told the story of Marian's death with unconscious dramatic art.

"That morning," she said, "as I was going to take the car to go down to the Deerfield High school, I noticed a young fellow standing behind a big oak in the woods. It was Will Orpet, but he had his coat collar turned up and his hat pulled down, and when he saw me looking at him, he dodged behind a tree.

FOOTSTEPS IN SNOW LED TO GIRL'S BODY.

He did not want me to see him, because he knew that I would recognize him and he was afraid that I would tell his father, because the Orpets live right across the road from our house.

Marian and I were the only two girls that got on at that station to go to high school. She did not get on that morning, but Josephine Davis did. Marian went over into the woods.

"The next morning, when they began searching for her, they found her footsteps and those of Will Orpet in the snow, and they followed them where they had walked through the woods, and then on the Sheridan road, and then back again into the woods.

"That was where they found Marian, lying here under these trees. Who her father was they could not tell, but Marian, and when she didn't return home to dinner, they said she must be fell down in a faint because her.

The place where Marian Lambert's dead body was found is known as Lover's Leap. But somehow, in spite of the three splendid young trees, stiff and straight as sentinels that grew so closely together they seem to have sprung from a single root.

HEART AND INITIALS BLURRED BY WINTER

It was the trysting place for Marian and Orpet, and not forty feet away is another tree on which Orpet carved their initials, with a crude heart between them, after the immemorial fashion of boyish sweetheart.

The sap of another Summer puts it in the tree's power to grow his battered the outlines of the letters and half obliterated the heart, the boy lover carved so confidentially, but even so, they have lasted longer than the romance they commemorated, for of the two children who played at love a brief twelve months ago, one is dead and the other is on trial for his life, charged with killing her for whom he swore eternal devotion.

No more perfect setting for a love idyl could be found than is Helm Woods, where the romance of Marian Lambert and Will Orpet lived out its short, passionate life. Helm Woods is a beautiful stretch of rolling woodland cut across by a deep ravine through which ambles a little silver brook. Just now it abounds in all the woody things that make the forest sweet in Springtime.

SUMMER MADNESS ENDED ON LAST WALK

It was through this woods, with its hidden nooks and dark recesses, that Will Orpet and Marian Lambert wandered, hand in hand last Summer, carving their names on the trees, as did Orlando and Rosalind. Here they loved and kissed and quarreled themselves to a midsummer madness that took no heed of the future.

And when the Summer was over, the boy went off to his work in his career and forgot, and the girl stayed at home and remembered.

And when the two met again in Helm Woods the snow lay heavy on the ground. It was Winter. Winter in their souls as well as in the forest. For the boy had ceased to love and the girl still loved.

In the Summer they had walked through woods, swearing their love to each other, but on that last walk through the snow the boy must have been telling the girl that his love was as dead as the flowers that had perished with the frost, and her heart must have been as black as the bows of the leafless tree above them.

STARK TRAGEDY SHOWN IN END OF ROMANCE.

And there was stark tragedy in this that the end of the romance should have come where it began, and that the girl should have died at the foot of the trees that had been their trysting place.

The whole story of the ill-fated love affair of Marian Lambert and Will Orpet is a tragedy as terrible and as pitiful as can be woven of the weird and warp of human weakness and sin, but in judging if one thing is perfect to be forgotten or overlooked and that is that both of them were little more than children.

Their tragedy is the tragedy of youth. Their romance was the romance of young love that sometimes ends in death, but sometimes stops to count the cost. Their passion was the consuming fire of hot young blood. Their sin and folly was the sin and folly of heedless youth. Their despair was the unreasoning despair of callioned. Out falls the present moment the end of life.

Marian Lambert was no easy going woman that experience had taught to be wise. She was no calculating siren, plotting to ensnare a man, and make him pay the price of his indiscretions. William Orpet was no hungry eyed old Lothario deliberately preying on young girls.

FOLLOWED IMPULSES OF MOTHER NATURE

Undoubtedly these two sinned, but as surely as one may read the heart of a man and boy their sin was not deliberate nor planned. Nor were they sinners in the real meaning of the word. They were just two weak, undisciplined young creatures who followed the impulse Mother Nature had implanted within them.

So far as relations that existed between this boy and girl were concerned justice may well be tempered with mercy, but who should this love affair have ended in the girl's death, and who is responsible for it?

TOUCHING MEETING OF ORPET AND HIS MOTHER IN COURTROOM

Waukegan, Ill., May 24.—A touching meeting between Will Orpet and his mother took place today when the student accused of poisoning Marian Lambert entered the courtroom.

Severely shaken by the death of a fellmate from the delirium tremens in a nearby cell, Orpet appeared in court wan and haggard.

Mother and son met halfway down the aisle. Mrs. Orpet held the youth in a long embrace while the spectators, deeply moved, turned their heads away. All during the session Orpet sat very close to his mother.

At the opening of court there was a long argument over the use by the defense of the word "caution" in alluding to circumstantial evidence in jury calling. The defense contended that, according to legal usage, "circumstantial evidence must always be scanned with caution." State's Attorney Ralph Judy immediately objected to this, and a long drawn out argument followed. Both sides cited authorities. At the conclusion Judge Donnelly reserved decision.

No progress was made during the morning in the work of getting a jury. When court opened there were four jurymen in the box sworn in and four others passed by both sides. Two of these latter were excused, one because he did not believe in conviction on circumstantial evidence, and the other because he had expressed a prejudice against capital punishment. Both were farmers.

With a fresh venire of 100 talesmen to work on, attorneys resumed into the task of getting a jury with renewed vigor today. The new venire is composed almost entirely of town people, and included persons of every vocation—from bank president to fruit vendor.

The venire called today is the sixth in the case. More than 500 jurors have been examined in the eight days of the trial, and they have yielded but four men acceptable to both sides.

Attorneys, however, were confident that twelve men could be obtained by a determined effort and the taking of testimony be started by Friday.

Dorothy Mason, one of Marian Lambert's chum-mates, testified today that Marian had often talked of "eating it all." On one occasion especially Marian became morose when chided about the intention of taking Celeste Youker to the "prom" at the University of Wisconsin, where he was a student.

It was for love of Miss Youker, the State charges, that Orpet forced the poison between the girl's lips as they met in the woods.

struction out on the defence's objection.

Then Dr. Waite told him that the shoe box found out his mouth longer was the statement made by Percy Peck, brother-in-law of the man on trial for his life, who was a witness before he (Peck) testified.

Peck testified that Dr. Waite told him on February 10 Peck died March 12.

Peck also swore that immediately after the funeral of John E. Peck, Dr. Waite asked if his wife could receive the income from her share of the estate before the will was probated. He testified that his father was worth $1,000,000, half of which Waite's wife received under the will.

The sender of the mysterious "Dr. Adams" telegram was identified today as Elizabeth P. Hardwick, a niece of Dr. Cornell who testified yesterday. She said the telegram after a conversation on March 12. Her reasons for sending the telegram, she said, she could not state, the testimony not being legal.

A dramatic scene was enacted in the courtroom today.

Brought face to face with Mrs. Margaret Horton, famed as the accused dentist's "Studio Mate," who is one of the prosecution's most important witnesses, the doctor shielded her.

Mrs. Horton, with her sister, Helena Weaver, and her husband, took a seat within two feet of a point where Dr. Waite passed on his way from the prisoners pen to his counsel's table.

When Waite entered court he stared at his wife "Dumb composure" and then turned away without a flash of recognition.

Stung by the rebuke, Mrs. Horton wept softly for several minutes.

Among those in the court room were Prince and Princess Stalkinoff. It was their first public appearance together since the wedding of their separation suit some time ago.

CORROBORATE EMBALMER.

The prosecution opened the third day of the trial by calling several minor witnesses to corroborate the story told yesterday by Eugene Oliver Kane, the embalmer, of Waite's meeting with Kane, giving him a check for $3,000 and later cashing a second check for $9,500 and giving it to the embalmer to put arsenic in a sample of the embalming fluid.

WANTS THE BLIND WARNED OF OLEO

In the Municipal Court today, Professor James O. Jordan of the Board of Health declared that proper penalties where oleomargarine is used should notify blind persons and others unable to read of this fact. Professor Jordan made this statement when George K. Chimes of Washington street, South End, was in court charged on two counts with serving oleomargarine without notifying those persons who dined at his restaurant. He was found guilty. He was found guilty. He was fined $10 on one count while the other count was filed.

FRAUD INQUIRY ON CHELSEA ELECTION

The inquest started about two months ago into charges of illegal registration in connection with the last Chelsea elections, was resumed today in the lobby of Judge Dubuque in Boston in the Chelsea court.

Former City Solicitor Harry W. James was appointed by Attorney-General Attwill to conduct the examination for the government, assisted by Maurice Caro, candidate for Mayor against the present incumbent, Mayor Malone, and ex-Mayor Willard. Twenty witnesses were summoned.

SEEKS OWNER OF CARRIER PIGEON

Mrs. R. J. Noyes writes the AMERICAN that on April 13, last, a white carrier pigeon flew in her bedroom window at No. 662 East Fifth street, South Boston, and has since refused to leave. The night the pigeon arrived was stormy and the bird was exhausted. On the pigeon's right leg is a blue enameled gold band with two sets of numbers.

NEW HAVEN SELLING PLAN IS PUT OVER

The recommendation of the Public Service Commission to compel the New Haven road to sell its electricity, gas, electric, steamship and real estate holdings that are not essential to the operation of a railroad was referred to the general court by the State Senate today. The action was taken without a word of debate and without a ballot.

MRS. WAITE TELLS OF TRAGEDY

300 IN RIOT IN NEWTON STRIKE

Four officers and ten strikers were hurt, one striker was sent to the hospital and seven arrests were made during the riot in the Auburn street neighborhood in Newton Upper Falls this forenoon as opposed during the house battle between police and the strikers in front of the Saco-Lowell finishing shops today.

The officers were rushed and charged by strikers and fought with fists, sticks and stones.

Patrolman Frank Malone was felled by a brick which landed on his nose. Patrolman Frank Sartorelli arrested and a striker for throwing the brick at Malone and was himself immediately felled himself by a brick on the left temple.

Patrolman John Fortestall swung his club over the head of a striker for smashing some glass and the striker dropped. He was later taken to Newton Hospital. It was reported that his skull was fractured by Fortestall's club.

Fortestall was later out severely on one hand with a club or missile.

Patrolman H. H. Perry, who joined the Newton police force two weeks ago after a 100 per cent civil service examination, was struck by a brick.

The four strikers arrested were:

Peter Pontes, Samuel Archilitan, Charles Parsonian and Dan Zakanesk. They were taken to the hospital is practically under arrest, making a total of five prisoners.

The Saco-Lowell machine shops make cotton machinery. One hundred machinists who went on strike had returned under a compromise increase. Between 100 and 500 moulders, machinists and helpers were awaiting today the result of negotiations between their strike committee and the management. There was to be a meeting at 10 o'clock.

From 200 to 300 strikers were in front of the company gates on Oak street in Newton Upper Falls when the shops opened today. There had been no disagreement among the strikers themselves, but a police detail had been patrolling Oak street since the strike started last Friday.

At 7 a. m. Sergeant Kyte and fourteen patrolmen were on duty there. No trouble was expected because the strike committee was to meet the management in three hours.

George Earle, a mason employed in the shops, started in to work this morning. It is said that the masons and carpenters had not been involved in the strike.

Some strikers tried to stop Earle. He refused. They pulled him back. A patrolman forced a way before Earle and a flash real trouble came.

According to the police version, the mass of strikers made a general move toward the gates.

Clubs and sticks seemed to develop on the strikers' side. Sergeant Kyte's nose grew thin and blue. One patrolman was sent on the run to telephone headquarters for reserves. Things looked ominous to the sergeant.

Meanwhile the sergeant and the other fifteen patrolmen made a general drive against the compact mass of strikers and the scrap centered around Earle, the mason.

The call to headquarters came at an awful moment. The police force automobile was being repaired. A car was finally secured. It took only five men, but it made the distance in fast time.

A second call was sent back to headquarters for men. The overworked patrolmen rushed back and forth—five men at a clip. Some patrolmen came by trolley. Chief Fred Mitchell came on the second call.

AWARD BOWDOIN PRIZES AT HARVARD

The annual distribution of the Bowdoin prizes were made today at Harvard. First prize of a bronze medal and $150 was awarded to Carl A. Pforte of Milton for a dissertation in English. Second awards were made to undergraduates Oscar L. Tripp and Sidney B. Pfeifer of bronze medals and $100. Odell Shepherd of Los Angeles, deceased, L. Fuller of St. Paul and Daniel Robinson of North Salem, graduate students, were awarded medals and $200 each.

BAG PRESENTED CHAPLAIN PASCO

Louis A. Pasco, chaplain of Boston Lodge of Elks, was presented with a traveling bag and accessories at the thirty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the lodge, which was celebrated at the club house in Somerset street. It was Chaplain Pasco's sixtieth anniversary. Cornelius F. Keating, chairman of the entertainment committee, was presented with an Elk's tooth.

McCall Names Board to Direct Pilgrim Fete

The mayor McCall today sent to the council a number of appointments, including the following: To the Pilgrim Tercentenary Celebration Commission, Henry L. Higginson of Boston, Richmond Pearson Hobson of Brookline, Frank W. Stearns of Newton, Robert A. Barnett of Southmayd and Arthur Lord of Dedham.

Henry E. Woods of Boston was reappointed as Commissioner of Public Records and Robert Lincoln O'Brien was reappointed as trustee of the state library. The latter appointment was confirmed under suspended rules.

Charles T. Davis of Boston, Professor H. Chamberlain and Guy Newhall, the latter of Lynn, were appointed members of the commission to revise the laws relative to the partition of real estate.

Governor Tells How Drink Cuts Man's Life Short

Governor McCall spoke before the Unitarian Temperance Society in the Arlington Street Church today, and gave life insurance statistics showing the effect on longevity of those drinking liquor.

"The Mutual Life Insurance Company, he said, "studied the matter, and found an unmistakable difference between those who drank water and those who drank liquor.

"Those who drank beer suffered almost as much as those who drank wine and spirituous drinks.

"The mortality of the abstainers was 70 per cent less than of the persons who used liquor, rarely; 21 per cent less than that of the temperate drinkers, and 53 per cent less than that of the moderate drinkers."

Wilson in New York for Wedding of Dr. Grayson

By International News Service.

New York, May 24.—President Wilson's party arrived from Washington this afternoon to attend the wedding of Dr. Cary T. Grayson and Miss Alice Gertrude Gordon. Accompanying the President were Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. William G. McAdoo and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones.

The party was met at the Pennsylvania station by Dudley Field Malone and Colonel E. M. House. The President went to the residence of Colonel House and the feminine members of the party were driven to the home of Mrs. Henry Wood Flournoy, with whom Miss Gordon has been making her home. The Presidential party brought a huge wedding cake from Washington.

GIVEN 6 MONTHS FOR HAVING DRUG

Broken in health by the continuous use of drugs, John L. Felton of Dorchester was arraigned today charged with having morphine in his possession while in the Charles Street jail and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction.

CRAFT IS FREED ON BAIL

Today Hugh Craft, the Dorchester youth charged with murdering Alexander Forrest, was released from the Charles Street jail on $5,000 bail. Craft, who is but 18 years old, was held without bail on the charge of murdering Forrest, a middle-aged man, who was found dead in the woods near Craft's home in Dorchester.

The new bail was furnished by Dr. Walter B. Fernald, superintendent of the state institution for the feeble-minded at Waverley.

The bail will be furnished by Dr. Walter B. Fernald, superintendent of the state institution for the feeble-minded at Waverley.

POMEROY COMPARISON.

District Attorney Pelletier said the action was unusual and added newspaper in endeavoring to suppress the publication of the story of the confession. He compared it to the Pomeroy case.

"When this case came up," he said, "I felt terribly. The boy's murder of Alexander Forrest was a horrible deed, with a crime so that one dined, was so abnormal. The evidence that came out at once showed the crime to be that of an abnormality.

"I decided then to have Dr. Fernald examine the boy. He reported to me that he could not certify that Craft was abnormal in the sense that he was an idiot, and he was not a degenerate.

AGREE TO EXPERIMENT.

"Then we agreed to try out under our conditions a boy who was mentally or nervously wrecked might not show it; where, if he were not agreed, under conditions similar to those under which he committed the crime, he might repeat the symptoms of his mental trouble.

"I asked Dr. Fernald if he would make the experiment and he agreed to do so. Precedents have to be broken, but precedents always have to be broken when the circumstance merit forward.

"I went in a like manner and explained what I wanted to do. He was inclined to demur, but finally consented.

"Now the boy will be taken where he can't get food in the vicinity, see people, undergo the excitements and suffer the sensations that he would ordinarily experience.

"If he shows that he is insane, if he is a degenerate in all, I believe, show signs of it."

If Craft does develop symptoms indicating that he is abnormal, he will be given the medical and surgical treatment and care accorded a mentally unbalanced child. But if he proves to be normal, he will be returned into the custody and tried for the crime with which he is charged.

On the afternoon of January 28, Craft was left in charge of two children, Rose Forrest and Jack, the eldest three and one-half years, and the youngest two. In the evening when the mother returned, the youngest child was unconscious in bed, and the eldest was gone.

The baby died before morning, and was found to be injured about the head. When Craft was captured, he had a number of cuts and bruises with his fists, with a wet towel, and finally with a knife, but denied that he murdered and could not obey him.

He was held on a charge of murder, and was indicted on that charge in February.

BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD

Boston, Mass., May 23, 1916.

To the Noteholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad:

You are asked to extend your notes to July 17, 1916, under the following terms:

ANY HOLDER OF NOTES MAY EXTEND THE TIME OF PAYMENT OF THE AMOUNT DUE THEREON TO JULY 17, 1916, WITH INTEREST DISCOUNTED AT THE RATE OF 6% PER ANNUM.

On February 11, 1916, a Joint Reorganization Committee was appointed under authority of votes of the Directors of the Boston and Maine, Boston and Lowell and Fitchburg Railroads, to formulate the details of the plan of consolidation then proposed. Since that time the Committee has been working upon the plan, and has made much progress, but they have been unable to complete their task and desire further time.

The Board of Directors is in favor of giving such time to the Reorganization Committee in the hope that they may be able to complete and present a definite plan.

Your security will not be in any way diminished by this extension, if granted, as no mortgage can be placed upon the property without securing your notes, and it will enable us to continue our efforts toward a sound reorganization under favorable conditions.

Acceptance of this offer must be construed as conditional upon action by the Directors, not later than June 1, 1916, declaring the plan of extension effective.

Noteholders are requested to advise the Old Colony Trust Company, 17 Court Street, Boston, Massachusetts, before 2 p. m., Wednesday, May 31, 1916, of their acceptance of the plan for extension, stating the numbers, including prefixes, denominations and dates of issue of the notes they hold. Noteholders will subsequently be asked to present their notes for extension.

By order Board of Directors,

J. H. HUSTIS,
President.

MACNEILL, SINN FEIN HEAD, IS CONVICTED

so his activities brought him into close association with James Larkin, the Irish labor leader and Sinn Feiner, who is now in the United States; Sir Roger Casement, the Countess Markievicz, James Connolly, Joseph Plunkett, Sheehy Skeffington and others.

There was a difference of opinion between White and Sir Roger, it was said, as to the best means of bringing about home rule for Ireland.

Counsel for the government stated that White had gone into South Wales with the object of inducing coal miners to strike in order to compel the government to show leniency toward the leaders of the Irish rebellion.

White's counsel declared that the real object of the defendant's visit to South Wales was to enlighten the people regarding the real meaning of the Sinn Fein movement.

Propose to Protest Americans in Ireland

Washington, May 24.—The Foreign Relations Committee voted today to recommend to the Senate that immediate action be taken for the protection of American lives and property in the revolution zone in Ireland. The committee decided to report favorably Senator Kern's resolution to that effect.

The Kern resolution was drafted in response to hundreds of inquiries from all parts of the country concerning the safety of American tourists and students in and about Dublin during the revolt. The resolution, as amended by the committee, reads:

Whereas, it is represented that at the time of the recent revolt in Ireland there were, and are yet, many American citizens in districts in which martial law was proclaimed and in which armed conflicts occurred, and whereas the relatives and friends in this country of such American citizens whose safety has been thus engendered are apprehensive lest their lives and property have been imperiled, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Secretary of State be and is hereby requested to cause inquiry to be made through our consular representatives as to the safety and well-being of American citizens in Ireland, and what steps as may be necessary and proper for the safeguarding and protection of their lives and property.

WOMEN BOMBARD RECTORY WITH EGGS

Bridgeport, Ct., May 24.—Enraged because their indignant demands for the removal of Father Gaspar Panik from the pastorate of St. Cyril and Methodius church, were ignored, hundreds of women stormed the rectory this morning, smashing windows and furniture and hurling rotten eggs throughout the house. Rev. Father Panik and others in the rectory fled in terror. Thirteen women were arrested. Serious allegations are made by the women of the congregation against the Rev. Father Panik.

U. S. GRANT SCHOOL AND STORE ROBBED

The East Boston police were notified today that the U. S. Grant school in Paris street and the Star Department Store in Central square were broken into during the night. At the school Headmaster Kelley stated thieves had gone to his office, forced open a telephone coin box, securing about $1.

In the Department store the robbers stole about $10 worth of men's shirts and stockings, and wrecked a gum slot machine.

M'CALL AND SENATE ARE GUESTS OF FAY

Governor McCall and the members of the State Senate today were the guests at a luncheon given in their honor by Senator Wilton B. Fay at the Senator's West Medford estate. After the luncheon the party went to Winchester, where they were entertained at Governor McCall's home. The party will return to Medford this evening for a formal dinner at the Medford Armory by the city of Medford.

New Uprights
Baby Grands and Player Pianos
Of the Best Known Makers

I HAVE spent several weeks preparing this big sale—My sacrifice selling floor is crowded with new pianos marked so low that every piano will be sold on sight. When you read the maker's name and then read the cut price on the selling tag you will not hesitate to buy. "How can I afford to sell them so much lower than other dealers?" you ask. That's a business secret. I might tell you sometime.

MRS. CARPENTER TELLS ABOUT LETTERS

Concord, N. H., May 24.—Mrs. Ralph G. Carpenter, under cross-examination today in her husband's divorce suit, testified that she once sat on the rocks with Day on Long Day, whom her husband names in his suit, till after midnight, and that she and Day and the little boy, Ralph, were once together in the woods at Norman's Woe.

She finished her cross-examination at the morning session of court.

She testified that she and Day once went into the cottage where the boarders slept together at night. She said they went through a vacant bedroom to the west porch and remained there fifteen minutes, and that she saw her husband watching while she was there.

The spectators were frozen into attention when Senator Martin, cross-examining, asked brusquely:

"Mrs. ——, identify him if you kissed either Day or Ispew at one time or another. Is that testimony true or false?"

She answered, "It is absolutely false."

He also asked about a telephone conversation she had with the boy, Mrs. Carpenter said:

"Little Ralph's answers were short and curt. I inquired if anyone was in the booth with him and the little fellow replied, 'Yes, papa is in here with me.' I then asked him to tell his father to step outside, and a minute later the boy said to me, 'Muddy, I want to come home. I'm lonesome.'"

This makes the sixth day that Mrs. Carpenter has been on the stand. The court room was crowded early, as usual.

Attorney Martin opened the session by inquiring of Mrs. Carpenter who it was wrote the letters she sent to her son while he was in Wolfboro.

Q—Where did you write the originals of the letters? A—In the hotel.

TELLS OF LETTERS.

Q—Where were the copies written?

A—In Mr. Badger's office.

Q—Weren't the originals written there, too? A—They were not.

Q—Did Mr. Badger dictate these letters to your boy? A—He did not.

Q—Did you mail these "dear letters to your "dear" boy? A—I think I did.

Q—Didn't Mr. Badger mail some of them? A—I cannot remember.

At this point Attorney Martin referred to testimony given at Dover, N. H. during the preliminary hearing relative to the custody of the child. Testimony showed that Mr. Badger mailed two of the letters.

Q—You did request of your son that you talk alone with him over the telephone, while he was in Wolfboro? A—Yes, I did. May I explain? Mr. Martin: "Yes, sure."

Mrs. Carpenter: "When I talked with little Ralph once the answers were short and curt to me. I inquired if anyone was in the booth with him and the little fellow replied, 'Yes, papa is in here with me.' I then asked him to tell his father to step outside. A minute later the boy said to me, 'Muddy, I want to come home; I'm lonesome.'

Q—Why didn't you send little Ralph's clothes to him at Wolfboro after he was taken away? A—I certainly could not see any reason why I should send them. There were very few anyway.

ADVISED BY LAWYERS.

Q—Why did you spite the boy in that manner? A—I did not spite the boy. If I had sent Ralph's clothes to them at Wolfboro it would have been a confession on my part that they had done the proper thing. I would have never thought of such a thing.

Q—Ralph had a nice little fur coat, didn't he? A—Yes.

Q—Why didn't you send that to him? A—Mr. Badger advised me not to.

Q—Then it was a question of law, not love, relative to the comfort of little Ralph? A—I can't answer that.

Q—Have you employed any detectives in this case? Know anything about two women that have recently visited Wolfboro? A—No.

Q—And your counsel have not employed any detectives? A—No.

SAT ON ROCKS.

Q—How late did you stay on the rocks with Day? A—Got home about 12 or 12:30.

Q—You and he alone on rocks? A—Yes.

Q—What happened September 27? A—It was a dance night. Mr. Day walked over to the cottage with little Ralph and me at 9:30.

Q—Notice anyone watching that night? A—Yes, two men lying in the grass and two men on the annex porch.

Q—Day kiss you that night when leaving? A—I absolutely deny it.

Q—Six men testify you kissed either Day or Depew at one time or another. Is their testimony true or false? A—Absolutely false.

Q—Never kissed you on any occasion? A—No, never.

Q—Doland states you embraced, deny that, too? A—I certainly do.

Q—You say Eaton is a truthful man? A—Yes.

Q—Know why he saw one vacant chair on the piazza when he passed. A—I don't know what he saw, all I know is that Mr. Day occupied one chair and I the other.

Q—Did you know that your husband and a police officer by the name of Williamson were situated underneath the piazza and were listening to your conversation? A—No, I never knew that.

Q—Remember on September 4th, was Day there? A—He was.

ASKED PERMISSION.

Q—He asked permission to come over? A—Yes.

Q—Paine says that when the light was turned on you were in Mr. Day's lap. Were you in that position? A—That is a falsehood. I was in my chair and Mr. Day in his.

Q—Holt says he saw you pull a curtain down in the bedroom with the French window one night. Did you? A—I did not.

Q—Holt says you and Day came out of that room about twenty minutes after you had gone in? A—That's not true. Little Ralph cried or we both were on the piazza a few minutes. I went through that room and into the porch and upstairs to attend to little Ralph. I then returned to the porch.

PRIESTS DENY CHARGES BY MITCHEL

New York, May 24.—Mayor Mitchel's charges before the Thompson legislative committee that certain priests of the New York archdiocese had conspired to wreck his administration met with emphatic denial today from leading Catholic officials. He was denounced as a "deliberate falsehood" by Rev. James J. Higgins, superintendent of the Catholic Charities of Brooklyn.

Father William Farrell, the tapping of whose telephone wires in the interest perhaps of Charities Commissioner John A. Kingsbury and the latter's attorney, Henry the Mayor's statement before the committee as a succession of falsehoods.

Monsignor Dunn, chancellor of the archdiocese, declared there had been no antagonism to the Mayor or his administration on the part of the church authorities.

"Mayor Mitchel has lost his head," said Father Higgins. "He is too young to be Mayor. He is simply making use of some unfortunate and innocent dupes to conceal his own nefarious acts."

Mayor Mitchel "stood pat" today on his charges, despite the denials with which they were met.

HOW MAGNESIA HELPS DYSPEPTICS

Patent Foods, Dieting and Medicine No Longer Necessary.

Many dyspeptics have now discontinued the use of expensive patent foods, are eating what they please in reason yet no longer take harmful drugs, medicines and artificial digestants to relieve their stomach trouble. Instead they just take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in a little water after meals, with the result that they not only save money, but enjoy much better health and the stomach no longer gives them trouble.

Those who have not tried bisurated magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know that this wonderful antacid and food corrective which absolutely does not injure the stomach and which can be obtained at little cost at almost any drug store will instantly neutralize all their excessive acidity and prevent all possibility of their food souring or fermenting in the stomach. Try this plan yourself but be sure to get bisurated magnesia, as magnesia in other forms often has a strong laxative effect which is not desirable.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The latter rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

ELOPING BRIDE, DIVORCED, IS WED AGAIN

Providence, May 24—Miss Helen H. Preston, who eloped with and divorced James J. Kinsley, a contractor, has become the bride of James LeBrandt, a motion picture director, whose real name is said to be Joseph L. Norris of Philadelphia.

The announcement of the marriage was received in a letter today by the girl's mother, Mrs. Rebecca Cole Welch Preston, who said that her daughter was coming home, while the former bridegroom had started for California.

According to dispatches from Greenwich, Conn., Miss Helen H. Preston was married to Joseph L. Norris of Philadelphia by Justice of the Peace William C. Bunger. The couple described herself as twenty-one years old and The daughter of William Charles Preston and Mrs. Rebecca Cole Hall. Preston of Providence, R. I. Norris said he was the eighteen-year-old son of William L. Norris and Mrs. Sarah J. Butler Norris of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Preston said: "The marriage is the culmination of a romance which began a year ago, shortly after securing a divorce from Kinsley on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment. Miss Preston, then only eighteen years old, met James LeBrandt, director of the Eastern Film Company, which has since gone out of business. The young man was ambitious to become a movie star, and was given work with a company by Mr. LeBrandt.

"The acquaintance formed in this way developed into friendship. When my daughter went to New York to study music the friendship was continued, LeBrandt being connected with a moving picture company in that city. It is thought he used LeBrandt as a stage name.

"According to my daughter's letter, which was written from No. 204 West 85th street, where she had gone for her home since going to New York last October, the matter ripened at a dinner given in honor of Miss Preston a few nights ago by Mrs. Foster, a friend of mine, at No. 170 East 81st street. LeBrandt attended this dinner, and it is understood he asked the vital question that night.

MAN IS HELD FOR TAUNTON KILLING

Taunton, May 24—Louis Souza was held for the Grand Jury in the local court today on a charge of murder in stabbing William Gaynor in the neck in a street brawl in North Dighton last Saturday. Souza was arrested while running from the scene. The police say they found a blood-stained knife on him.

16 LIVING CHILDREN FOR ONE COUPLE

Newport, N. H., May 24—Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel R. Barton of this town claim the local record for large families, having sixteen living children. The latest arrival, a girl born Monday, maintains the balance between the sexes, there being eight boys and eight girls. The couple have been married nineteen years.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gasses, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.—Advertisement.

Find Abandoned Baby Girl at Sale in Church Vestry

New Bedford, May 24—A baby girl about two weeks old was found by the police abandoned to her mother in the vestibule of the Elm Baptist Church on Mobile street within two minutes' walk of the business centre of the city. Members of the church attending a sale in the vestry heard the child crying and called the police. The woman's back up was turned into a nursery. The clothing was all neat and contained no identifying marks.

Bishop Hughes to Be Successor of Bishop Hamilton

Saratoga Springs, May 24—Bishop Edwin H. Hughes was transferred from San Francisco to Boston, where he will succeed Bishop Hamilton, who retires because of age, at a special meeting of the Episcopacy committee of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

AUTO INJURIES FATAL TO WOMAN

Taunton, May 24—The woman who was injured in an automobile accident on County street early Sunday morning and who first gave her name as Miss Marie Smith of Providence, then changed it to Mrs. Clinton Smith, died early today at the Morton Hospital from concussion of the brain. The police reported on the accident that the car in which the woman was riding was owned and operated by Harold B. Andrews of Wheeler avenue, Cranston, R. I. Its registry number was "No. 6267 R. I." The accident came when the car skidded into a telegraph pole.

M'CALL URGES SHORTER DAY IN MILLS

Governor McCall today threw down the gauntlet to Everett W. Burdett and the other lobbyists who are charged with the defeat of the eight-hour bill for four workers in the Massachusetts paper mills.

In a special message read today in the State Senate, Governor McCall called upon the Republican majority of the Legislature to fulfill the party platform promise to provide "reasonable hours" for the four workers.

"I strongly urge upon you again the passage of a law which will fully keep faith with the people," the Governor said to the Legislature, "and deal with the condition in accordance with the humane spirit of the time."

Many of the paper mill employes now are compelled to work under a two-shift system, of eleven or thirteen hours a day. Because of the character of the work, the paper mills operate continuously twenty-four hours a day.

Charles Sumner Bird, himself a big paper manufacturer, and many other Progressives supported Governor McCall last Fall and, in return, the Governor secured a plank in the Republican platform promising to ameliorate the condition of the paper workers.

The four workers' bill went into the Senate, where it was killed without a rollcall.

Governor McCall is said to feel that it will be impossible to get the eight-hour day bill through the Legislature, but he is prepared to give his support to a bill which will make it a criminal offence for employers to request or urge the paper mill workers to work through more than one shift.

NEW CARRANZA DEMAND THAT U. S. RETIRE

By International News Service.

Mexico City, May 24.—The Mexican government has forwarded to the United States government a note demanding the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of American troops from Mexico.

It is reported here that in case of war with the United States, Mexico will be actively aided by Japan.

The note tells the United States in plain terms that Mexico is ready for war rather than to have "its national honor and sovereignty trampled upon."

Unofficially, it is stated that Mexico now has at or near the border upwards of 50,000 troops, in readiness for "any outcome."

President Carranza is quoted here as stating that upon the reply of President Wilson to the Mexican note will depend whether or not there is to be war.

The note is now on the way to Washington by special messenger, it is officially announced today.

Officials of the Mexican government make no secret of the fact that Japanese influence is behind the latest Carranza move. The tenor of the note is described as "inflexible," and this is directly attributable to the assurances here that Mexico will not only have the moral but also the material support of Japan in any contingency.

The Japanese hand is all the more openly evidenced since the trip of Mexico's envoy to Tokio shortly after the first American expedition crossed the border after Villa.

Apparently, according to authoritative circles here, the Carranza envoy's journey was "wholly successful."

This phrase was declared to mean that Japan was ready to back up Mexico as an active ally in whatever eventualities might ensue.

The changed attitude of the Mexican officials is everywhere evident. They seem more confident and self-assured. The note is declared to show evidence of this change of spirit.

Among the other things after demanding withdrawal of troops at once the note states that the Mexican government is informed that more American troops continue to cross the border.

The note declares that the Mexican people look upon this as more than a punitive expedition and as a violation of national sovereignty.

SAYS U. S. MUST DECIDE.

Two thousand students met and appointed a committee to wait upon General Carranza and assure him of their support in case of foreign invasion and to ascertain from him the present international situation.

Carranza informed the students that the difficulty with the United States was a diplomatic matter, and that, pending its solution, he was unable to discuss it.

He said, however, that a note was being sent to Washington and that on the reply of the United States government to this note depended the final outcome.

Capital Aroused by Carranza Threat

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, May 24.—That General Carranza, deliberately is trying to force an open break with the United States in order to bolster his fast-fading prestige is the opinion rapidly growing in official circles here.

His latest demand for the immediate withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico has invensed even those administration officials who heretofore have been tolerant of his attitude because they believed it assumed for home consumption.

It is considered likely here that the de facto government shortly will be informed plainly that while the United States has no design whatever on Mexican sovereignty, its first duty to its citizens is to protect them, and that it must retain sufficient force along the border and in northern Mexico for that purpose until the Mexican authorities demonstrate that they can handle the situation.

At the White House it was stated that there has been no change in the general situation and that the Pershing expedition will remain where it is "for the present."

BRING UP ARTILLERY.

Massing of some 12,000 Mexican forces, including all branches of the service, near Chihuahua City by General Jacinto Trevino is held in army circles here to be almost conclusive proof that an attack upon the American forces in that vicinity is contemplated.

The fact that included in their ranks is declared to be practically all the artillery of the Carranza army additionally is highly significant. Officials point out that it is not the customary thing to hunt bandits with artillery.

Pressure on the White House by leading Democratic Senators and Representatives from border States to call for a volunteer army of not less than 250,000 men was renewed today.

MILITIA ASKS CHANCE.

The New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania National Guard, which have been clamoring for active service, have renewed their pressure on the War Department, advising it would be better if their organizations were called into the field rather than to take away the coast artillery.

SIBLEY'S TROOPS TO RESUME PATROL DUTY

By International News Service.

Marathon, Tex., May 24.—Colonel Frederick Sibley, commander of the second punitive expedition, has returned to Marathon by automobile. He said he would immediately re-concentrate his regiment, the Fourteenth Cavalry, at Del Rio and Eagle Pass for border patrol duty.

Colonel Sibley passed two troops of the Sixth Cavalry under Captain Joseph R. McAndrews, twenty-one miles south of Marathon. They are to relieve Colonel Sibley's command and two troops of the Eighth Cavalry under Major George T. Langhorne at Boquillas.

The Langhorne command, according to Colonel Sibley, will start north today for Marathon. They will then go to Fort Bliss.

POKES FUN AT THE YALE FACULTY TEAM

New Haven, Ct., May 24.—In a humorous review of the Yale faculty baseball team of which he is manager and captain, Professor William Lyon Phelps says in part: "The nine is in excellent physical condition, having played no games and had no practice. The field coach is Dutch Carter and his opinion of his pets is not reassuring. When a reporter asked him how the faculty were batting, he made a few cursory remarks and then said:

"If the whole (quoted by censor) faculty fell off the Flatiron building they wouldn't hit the ground."

PROGRESSIVES PLAN ROOSEVELT BATTLE

New York, May 24.—State and national campaign plans were under consideration here at two separate meetings of the executive committee and the state committee of the National Progressive party today.

George W. Perkins presided at the former and Walter A. Johnson of Westchester county at the latter. Colonel Roosevelt was not present, but it was understood that Colonel Roosevelt's chances for the Republican nomination for President were thoroughly discussed.

GREW IN BOSTON IS SILENT ON MISSION

Joseph Clark Grew, first secretary of the American embassy in Berlin, arrived with his wife at their home, No. 299 Marlboro street, today.

"Mr. Grew has come directly to Boston to see our four children, whom he has not seen for two years," said Mrs. Grew to the AMERICAN. "He is very glad to get home, and will remain here probably until next week, when he will go to Washington."

Mr. Grew refused to discuss the rumor that he carried a message from Ambassador Gerard containing the Kaiser's peace terms. Mrs. Grew also refused to talk about the matter. She accompanied her husband to Berlin and has been with him ever since.

"You can imagine," Mrs. Grew said, "that both my husband and myself are overjoyed at the opportunity of again being with our children. They have grown considerably in the two years we have been absent, and we will have to start in getting acquainted with them again. That is the diplomat's main occupation until he goes to Washington."

500 MORE MARINES FOR SANTO DOMINGO

Washington, May 24.—Rear Admiral Caperton reported to the Navy Department today that 500 additional marines had been landed in Santo Domingo. They were the ones taken from Cape Haitien several days ago. Admiral Caperton's dispatch did not give any report on conditions in Santo Domingo.

DOCTOR IS HELD UPON DRUG CHARGE

Dr. James E. Stevens, who has been practicing on Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, since last August, was found guilty in Cambridge Court today on two counts of prescribing morphine to persons known to be habitual users of habit-forming drugs.

Judge Almy fined him $200 on each count. On appeal the physician was held in $1,000. Dr. Stevens fought the cases, declaring he merely was trying to help drug-fiends overcome the habit.

Charles Arthur Fosberg, twenty-two, of Prospect street, Cambridge, was given a six months' suspended sentence in the House of Correction for having morphine in his possession. He testified that he had been getting morphine prescriptions from Dr. Stevens on an average of every six days since February 1 last.

Edith Fosberg, twenty-four, of Bennington street, East Boston, pleaded guilty to having morphine. Her case was continued for disposition. The girl, a physical wreck, and weakly on the stand.

"I have used the drug for some time. I have been going to Dr. Stevens once a week for four months. I was introduced to him by Charles Mellyor. I got some prescriptions from the doctor under the name of Edith R. Foss."

John Christopher Purbes of Cambridge testified he had been getting drug prescriptions here a week from Dr. Stevens for six to eight weeks.

'Food Dictator,' to Have Full Power, Named by Kaiser

By International News Service.

Berlin, May 24.—Popular relief has been occasioned by an official announcement of the organization of a new War Food Department and the appointment, as president plenipotentiary, of Tortilowitz von Batocki, who twice declined the so-called "food dictatorship," called "the most thankless job in the empire."

Von Batocki's brilliant work as Over-President of revived East Prussia is known to have strongly influenced the Kaiser in choosing him for Germany's "food dictator." The press, however, warns the public not to indulge in exceeding optimism or to expect an immediate improvement in food conditions.

While there is every reason to believe that there is sufficient food in the empire for everybody's actual needs, there is an intimation to the public that still further restrictions and limitations of consumption along certain lines, notably meat, must be expected in the near future.

SAMPSON MAKES 31 KNOTS AT TRIAL

President Powell of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation received a wireless from Rockland, Me., stating that the destroyer Sampson on her official trial over the government course developed 29,000 horsepower and made 31.20 knots, the government requirement being 29.50. At her builder's trial last Saturday the Sampson made 32.72 knots.

BELT LINE PLAN PUT OVER BY SENATE

The proposition for a $10,000,000 belt line, financed and controlled by the State, to relieve freight congestion in the Metropolitan District, as recommended by the Boston Terminal Commission, was referred to the next General Court by the State Senate today. Similar action had been taken by the House.

"This plan was evolved after nine months of study by the Terminal Commission," said Senator James F. Cavanagh of Everett, who was chairman of the commission, "but the Metropolitan Affairs Committee of this Legislature threw it out after but a few hours' study."

Senator Cavanagh declared that under present conditions it requires from one to three days to get freight between the North and South Terminals, that it takes longer to get a car load from Lynn to Quincy than from Boston to Chicago and that the rates are discriminatory.

"Publicly-owned belt lines have solved the problem for many cities in this country and Canada," he asserted.

Game No. 2 with Tygers
Hose Ready for Climb

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

Two games remain scheduled to be played with the Tigers before the World's Champs as leave for a brief trip over to New York to meet the Highlanders. These games with the Tigers should be worth while from the standpoint of the fan. The clubs need them in their business and need them badly.

The Champs are on an even footing for games won and lost, but when this is considered it is not such a bad position to be in, though playing fifty-fifty based all is not the way to win a pennant.

The club has been handicapped by the failure of its pitching staff to come part of their western trip, will be one through at a time when the men on worth while from both the baseball the list were expected to be in the and financial standpoints. The Red Sox should take a leaf out of the books of Fielder Jones and Mc- Graw. One club looked on paper to be the weakest in the league, and yet it gave the best exhibition of the game seen in this city this Spring. The Browns if they had a good pitch- ing staff would be up there fighting all the way, and I am not so sure but they will have something to say about that first division as they do stand. Mclraw's team was in the cellar, and looked as if it would re- main there for some time to come.

The team that represents the Big City didn't give up and cry that it was out of the race. On the other hand they gave as good an exhibi- tion of come back as any club in re- cent years, and let me add that any team that can out on the road win eleven games in a row has something besides its uniforms.

Anything is possible in baseball, and a run of victories by the Red Sox would set the circuit on fire again, and it looks as if the men under Bill Carrigan had a good chance to start something.

INDIANS MUST FIGHT.

The lead held by the Cleveland club has been lost, and it appears as if the Indians would have to fight hard to stay up there. As they go home for a stay they are likely to keep within easy distance of the top, if not in that place, which will be a good thing for the game.

Cleveland as a city is baseball mad at the present time and should the In- dians remain in the lead during their stay at home the receipts will be large enough to buy several Speakers and declare a dividend on top of it as well.

S. MAGEE WILL BE A HELP

Braves Need Right-Handed Hitter in Outfield—Pitching Good Enough for Any Team

St. Louis, May 23.—With the East holding down the four first division positions the Western clubs are not making much of a pennant stir in the National League this May. It is Brooklyn first, Philadelphia second, Boston third and New York fourth, but the Braves will have to be con- tented with either second or third place when they return home.

And it is during this stand at home that Stallings expects to get back in the running because he expects to have Sherwood Magee in shape to re- turn to the outfield, and there are re- ports from "Bill" James are such that the Miracle Man firmly believes his spit-baller will be ready to mount the mound shortly.

BRAVES NEED HITTER.

The Braves do not need pitching as much as they need a right-handed hitter in the outfield, and there's no bit that Magee fills. Against a south- paw Stallings has been using Fred Snodgrass in centre, but judging by his exhibition yesterday Snodgrass is not the fielder he was several years ago.

The Braves have held up their end fairly well in the West, but, of course, their record does not compare with the Giants' performance, as Mcgraw's nine have swept through this section with twelve straight wins. It was four from the Pirates, two from the Cubs, and two from the Reds. What club has come over to the twelve in a row? Despite this performance the Giants are under the first division.

But back home Stallings will get the benefit of the morning practice. Then he has the use of a park well suited for the pastime, where during the early Spring games some sort of gridiron atmosphere greeted the ath- letes. In St. Louis the Braves are losing their kicks, for three days they have received ideal weather, which is showing the results from the pitchers.

Tyler pitched a two-hit shut-out game in the opener; Hughes had the Cardinals blanked for eight innings and defeated Perdue in the ninth; Ragan and Reulbach gave but six hits and two runs yesterday.

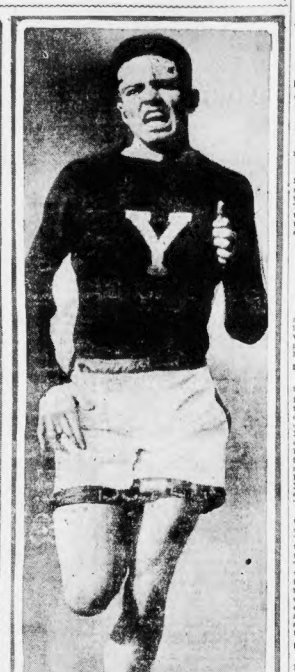
The final game will be played today and Dick Rudolph will be asked to make it three out of four. He will draw Bill Doak for his opponent.

COLUMBIA ENTERS BUT FOUR FOR MEET

Columbia will have only four men entered in the intercollegiates at Cambridge. They will be Frank Whelan in the middle distance runs, Captain Harvitt in the sprints, Cap- tain-elect Schulte in the running broad and high jumps and H. Loescher in the high jump.

Tom Black, the star sprinter since 1912, will not start. He has been troubled all year with a strained tendon and is away below form. This is the smallest team Columbia has sent in years. Whelan is the only man on whom Wefers banks much to place.

CRACK college track stars, who will compete in annual Intercollegiate meet at the Stadium Saturday: Ted Meredith, the Pennsylvania flyer (left), and Johnny Overton of Yale.



Meredith is expected to break the quarter and half-mile records in his last appearance as a college athlete, while Overton is the hope of Yale in the mile and two-mile runs.

Fair Golfers in Second Round at Brookline

Several interesting golf matches were carded to be played at the Country Club this morning in the second round of the annual Boston women's championship. Miss Ann Na- son, one of the low scorers yesterday, and Miss Vera Ramsay, champion, at- tracted the biggest gallery, as both demonstrated in the first round they are on the top of their games.

Miss Dorothy Crosby of Chestnut Hill, was considered capable of giv- ing Miss F. C. Osgood a good match, and this pair also attracted a large gallery. Miss Ruth Hitchborn, by eliminating Mrs. E. W. Dubey in the first round, aprung into the limelight and her chances of defeating Miss E. W. Allen, a golfer of national fame, were considered good when this pair left the first tee.

Play is down to the semi- finals in the three divisions of eight formed after the qualification round and close contests and good scoring was in evidence in all three divisions.

ROBERTSON SLATED TO TRAIN GRIDDERS

Philadelphia, May 24.—At a meet- ing of the directors of the Athletic Association of the University of Penn- sylvania Maylin J. Pickering was chosen graduate manager of the va- sity football team. A number of other matters were taken up, including the appointment of a trainer for the foot ball squad, but nothing definite was done.

Current gossip among the student body is to the effect that Lawson Robertson, is the most likely man for the position of trainer, but when the meeting closed it was stated that no action had been taken.

LELAND STANFORD STAR NOT BARRED

Manager Clement of the intercol- legiate meet denied this morning that Meredith House, the Leland Stanford hurdler, would be barred from com- peting in the coming games. A story had been circulated that he would be declared ineligible in the same way Billy Schick of Harvard was in 1908. House competed in an open meet last Summer and won a prize. He is a freshman at Stanford.

Coast Athletes Show at Stadium

CALIFORNIA and Leland Stanford will again work out in the Sta- dium this afternoon. Carlton Gilder- sleeve, Berkeley hammer thrower, is averaging between 160 and 165. Le- verediege, the shot-putter on the Cal- ifornia team, is doing around 47 feet.

CAPTAIN FRED MURRAY, Stan- ford's star hurdler, got a bad toss in the Michigan meet, but Student- Trainer Reynolds figures he will be in good form for the games. House and Norton are two other fine tim- bers-toppers with the Stanford boys.

Flyers Clash at Games
Rice, Maine, Dark Hoss

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

SHOULD conditions be ideal it would not be at all surprising if Saturday the final heats in the century and furlong dashes were run close to record-breaking time. Teschner of Harvard, Smith of Michigan, Treadway of Yale and possibly one or two others should be in the fore in each race.

Teschner has demonstrated he can run in 9 4-5 seconds in the century. With any sort of competition either he or the man who heads him to the tape should come mighty close to covering the distance in one-fifth of a second better. Many of the experts figure the race will be between Tesch- ner and Smith.

At Franklin Field, a year ago, Smith won with Teschner forcing him and the time was 10 seconds even for the century. Saturday Smith will find Teschner a much different runner and there are many shrewd judges who think the Harvard man plenty good enough to win.

There, one other man enters into the competition who cannot be overlooked. He is Charley Rice, the Titian-haired sprinter from Maine, who ran second to Andy Kelly at Springfield last Satur- day when the Holy Cross flyer scampered home in 9 4-5 seconds.

If Rice is in shape and conditions are right he, too, can run close to 9 3-5 seconds for the distance. Hence, with such a scrap on tap to make the going for first place, it is indeed a hard task to pick any one man to win.

FOURTH FOR TREADWAY.

Treadway of Yale finished fourth in the century last May and is traveling fully as fast this year. Considering the other trio it is hard to see how he can do better than land fourth Sat- urday. In addition to this quartet Murray, Leland Stanford's track lead- er, is entered. Reports from the Coast have had him negotiating the century in even time. Others to be considered are Van Winkle of Cornell, who may help Jack Monkley to a point or two; Moore of Princeton, White of Brown, O'Brien of Michigan and O'Hara of Tech.

Practically the same field goes in the 220-yard dash and the conditions surrounding that event are the same. Teschner, Smith and Rice are the men to be considered landing near the front. A year ago Smith won from Teschner in 22 seconds, with Tread- way third. Rice was second to Kelly in last Saturday's meet when the lat- ter negotiated the furlong in 21 1-5 seconds. Rice's time was about one-fifth of a second slower and should he have as much speed Saturday it is hard to see how anyone can beat him and not create a new record.

RICE BEAN WAYFING.

Rice wasn't in the Intercollegiates last year, as a result of a strained tendon, and consequently it is hard to figure his ability against the form shown by Smith and Teschner last year. In the Maine Intercollegiates this year Rice won the century in 9 4-5 and the furlong in 21 seconds even. Such going as that would make him an even favorite with Smith and Teschner.

In the hurdles one feels called upon to give Murray of Leland Stanford the edge. Reports from the Coast have him topping the high barriers in 15 seconds, which is one-fifth of a second higher than the Intercollegiate record, set by A. B. Shaw of Dart- mouth. He runs races one after an- other in smooth style and is ably sup- ported by House and Norton.

The latter two, however, are better over the low hurdles at the longer distance. House has covered that event in 24 seconds, which is but two- fifths of a second behind the record, held jointly by Kraenzlein of Penn- sylvania and Wendell of Wesleyan. Norton has done the distance in 24 1-5. Another Californian in figure to Pro- ble of the University of California, who has done 15 2-5 over the highs and seconded 25 over the low barriers.

CORNELL STARTS THREE.

Starr, Gubb and Lyford of Cornell have all been timed at 15 2-5 over the high hurdles and the former has done 24 3-5 over the lows.

Again in these events a Maine collegian looms up as a dangerous factor. Savage of Bowdoin won the low hurdles at Springfield last Saturday in 24 2-5, which estab- lished a new New England meet record for the distance. French of Maine won the low hurdles in 25 3-5.

J. V. Farwell of Yale won the hur- dles in the recent Harvard-Yale meet and is a factor for consideration in Saturday's games. Grady and Tren- holm of Dartmouth, Crawford of Princeton and Kauffman of Pennsyl- vania are all good men over the sticks. The latter is better at the low event than at the high.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

Griffiths Wins in Walk

Too Classy for Beecher

JOHNNY GRIFFITHS, the Akron, O., boxer proved himself a glovesman of rare, efficient ability while administering a sound trimming to Willie Beecher, the veteran New York ringster, at the Arena last night, and while he is unquestionably a boy of class, loomed up as a mighty heavy lightweight.

Beecher, per sport talk, generally has trouble making 135 pounds. Willie was in infinitely better trim for Griffiths last night than when on with Johnny Harvey, from his own ballwick, a few weeks ago. Still, Beecher was probably all of 135s. As for Griffiths, a tall, stockily put up youth, though one who doesn't carry any excessive embonpoint at the waistline, and whose limbs are not especially big, looked to be much nearer a welterweight than a lightweight; in fact, it doesn't appear possible for him to make the weight of the latter division.

It was Griffiths at the quarters, Griffiths at the half, Griffiths at the three-quarters; Griffiths into the stretch, and Griffiths at the final belt. Also Griffiths in the paddock, or 'round the ring, to be exact, as the talent was quick to install him a 10-1 favorite, and even those luscious odds were going begging at post time.

Griffiths is entirely too polished a ring product for the game, plodding, willing Beecher. That tells it all. Last night they were meeting for the fourth time, so announced the club's publicity purveyor in advance of the show, though rumor has it strong it was really their sixth clash. Be that as it may the bout, judged in its entirety, pleased.

NOTHING TO "BOOT" FOR.

All that was lacking to make it an unqualified success was for one of the starters to have called Boston or one of our fair city's suburbs "home." Another house of rather sparse dimensions turned out. There won't be anything doing at the Arena next Tuesday night. Why? Because the Armory A. A. officials have deemed it best to dodge the holiday.

Tuesday night, June 6, Jack Britton and Mike O'Dowd, two other out-of-towners, are to have it out. The bulk of the fans would rather have Mike Glover, the South Boston welterweight, New England's ungloriously champion in the division and the first American pugilist to outbox Ted (Kid) Lewis, who lost his title to Britton, though good enough in New York last week to win over the loudly touted Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul Phony, so on as one of the starters.

Yea, Be, the fans are clamoring for Glover, principally as that's left a real class among New England's flatiron celebrities to get into action against an out-and-out star. He's rough, according to George Freeman, his manager, and the Armory A. A. would probably get the "break" it is looking for, and which is long overdue, if it would trim Glover.

The preliminaries were switched around a little, with Charley Byrn and Tommy McFarland failing to stage their massacre. Each had a third and jarry ending. Johnny Donovan started by flattening Jack Gallant in the second round. The South Boston youngster was entirely too fast and rugged for Gallant.

MASTER O'BRIEN REPEATS.

"Yank" O'Brien, the slugging, awkward New Orleans battler, hit entirely too hard to suit Young Jasper, who though having quite a pull in the welterweight field over himself, with the result he got a hard lacing. Jasper was out standing up in the fifth round and hardly extended O'Brien all four numbers and gave a splendid account of himself, did right to stop the number.

Jim McDonald, the Roxbury whale, fought his second fight before the Triple A members since turning professional and, when pitted against Johnson, another brunette, nonused him up quite a bit, he went over in hurrah style last night. Bob Hardy of the U. S. R. Chester was Jim's vis-a-vis.

Bob did his best, but was sunk in the midst of the second stanza.

McDonald was more or less nervous, cause as usual, but seems to be getting along. A few wins, if they come, may make quite a builder out of the big, lumbering but willing prospect.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

Buffalo, May 24.—Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis middleweight, clearly bested Bob Devere of New York in ten rounds. Devere was on the verge of a knockout at least six times.

Rochester, N. Y., May 24.—Scoring his twelfth consecutive knockout, Bill Brennan of Chicago stopped Eddy Boss of Newcastle in the eighth round last night. Boss went to the floor from a right to the jaw and a short while afterward Brennan administered the finishing punch. Jack Dillman outpointed Pal Moore in fifteen rounds at the end of St. Louis, Mo., May 24.—Bob Anderson beat Jimmy Hanlon in eight rounds last night.

WAS SURELY IN A TERRIBLE STATE

Somerville Man States It Felt Like a Hot Fire in His Stomach.

It is always interesting to listen to the statements of our friends and especially when one knows that they are sincere and honest in what they say. Added interest is created in a statement coming from a well-known railroad man who has a host of friends who will be glad to know of his recovery to health. Mr. Michael Brown, who lives at No. 6 Broadway, Somerville, said:

MICHAEL BROWN.

"I had stomach trouble, indigestion, dyspepsia for two years. My food would ferment in my stomach, causing gas, with severe pains and a heavy, bloated condition. My stomach was so bad that it felt like a hot fire at times, and how I could eat anything and was so restless and nervous I could not sleep at night and did not know what to do. I heard of Plant Juice, and have been taking it for about two weeks and I can truthfully say that I am now feeling fine. I have no more aches or pains, have a fine appetite, sleep well at night and all my female ills are right and I will recommend it to everyone as a first-class medicine."

There are numerous symptoms of this trouble that Plant Juice can relieve. In fact, any of the following: dents affections of the stomach: indigestion, dyspepsia, belching of wind, bad breath, sick, throbbing headache, poor circulation, night sweats, tired feeling, costiveness, coated tongue or a poor complexion.

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Rowland to Remain as White Sox Pilot

Chicago, May 24.—"The boys are too eager to win," said Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, today in denying the story that he proposed to change managers.

"There is nothing the matter with the team, as a team, and they will round into shape soon. Of course, if the team keeps on slumping, I shall have to make some changes. But I have not determined upon what they will be as yet.

"Manager Rowland is all right and present conditions are not his fault at all. The team is just overanxious. They don't want 'em out.' Naturally, if I can improve the team in any way, by trades or by buying players, I will do it. Any money would."

Boxing Gossip.

Johnny Griffiths, the Akron, O., boy, a lightweight who has been showing Boston fans that he may be a legitimate 135-pounder, stopped the Triple A members who saw him in his Boston debut last night duped him all of 135, if not 140, made good with a vehement vengeance.

Griffiths will do, and the fans are pulling for the fans of Mish Murray, Ivy Lewis & Co. to import some out-and-out star to have it out with the Akron Flash.

Possible it would cost too much to bring on Charley White or Benny Leonard for a set-to with Griffiths. But judging on what Griffiths showed when doing up Willie Beecher, the plump, ditto game New Yorker, last night, Young Saylor, if well again, would make a mighty good foe to send against Johnny.

The commercial A. C. entertains at its quarters, No. 7 Green street, West End, Friday night. Young Bros. of Malden, New England bantam boxing champion, at Nimbus has proven a late routine it is not fair to throw him augmentated among the 116-118 pounders. Coaches will include Benning, the broadway hoplifter, in the main scrap.

Brown and Solberg should pull a corking good battle. They are nicely matched; have already had one battle and it was a draw. "Mickey" went down in the first round, and again in the second, but outboxed Solberg in the closing stages and made a fine affair out of it.

Terry Brooks, the newsboys' champion, has been put back on Big Time by Manager Mack and will have it out with Charley Ryan in the main event at the Commercial A. C. Friday night, June 2. While neither battler is very long on science, both can hit, and the scrap may be a hummer.

Charley Deshler, Walter Butler's manager, announces his charge has drawn the Battling Brooks. However, Matchmaker Freeman states it will be Ryers and Brooks.

John Doherty, who puts on the Brooks-Cortes battle, attended the Griffiths-Beecher battle at the Arena last night. The new Marseille A. C. which is only two weeks old, has got off on the right foot, states Doherty, and its success is assured. Its quarters are easily the snuggest of any in New England; in fact, are among the tidiest in the country. Some real big matches are carded for the Summer. Doherty is hopeful of putting Johnny Dundee on with some topliner late in June.

"Bill" Dineen, one of the original Boston Americans and a pitcher who had no peer in his day, likewise one of this city's heroes when the first world's championship series was brought to Boston in 1903, took in the Arena show last night. Bill Dineen was Nailin, his partner.

Most of the Red Sox also attended and the bunch seemed to have more "pepper" on than at any previous time this season. Play Watch me go from now on, was the line of talk they started G. Stone-egg Foster, touted my Pitcher right-hander, Carrigan, that starry little catcher, need have any more fear of the Cleveland invaders, and Tris Speaker, got all the bad games out of my system."

Sherwood Magee, the Braves' slugging left fielder, was also in a ringside seat. The ball team will be glad to learn that "Sherry" counts upon getting back into his spangles when his teammates open here Friday. More than likely he will get into the ruffles that day with the opening game unless Stallings decides it for the best to let him rest up a little longer.

YALE A. A. BECOMES MEMBER OF A. A. U.

New York, May 24.—The Yale Athletic Association was admitted to membership in the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. yesterday.

This makes the fifth college now eligible to compete in the association championships. Columbia, Fordham, Brooklyn and St. John's colleges also hold memberships in the Metropolitan Association.

B. & S. DEFEATS ALUMNI.

Browne & Nichols won a slugging match from the Alumni, 13-12. Perry and Elliot were in the points for the winners.

SOCCER SHOTS

FANS hereabouts were very much surprised at the defeat of Brockton Schollenold of the State association has long elected president of the Lawrence, Lowell and District League, as it was thought he'd be up for re-election in the State association for the 1916-17 term.

MAKING a jump from player and referee to president of the State association in four years is what James E. Schollenold accomplished, besides finding time to boost the game in Lawrence so that it is now adopted by the school officials as a part of the athletic schedule.

* * *

AT the start of the season many a club magnates saw visions of being in the championship class. Some aspired to the role of winning two or even three trophies. Many are the disappointments, however, as up to date there is but one club with two trophies.

* * *

FALL RIVER ROVERS are the city (Fall River) champions, New Bedfords the Times Cup, Brockton the champions of the Southern division, Lynn Fosse Northern division, and Boston and District League, and will either be the State champions or the runners up.

* * *

THE United Shoe team are the champions of the Lawrence and District League, and bid fair to qualify for the State trophy; as on playing form they should defeat the Fore Rivers in the semi-final and will give the Fosses the hardest fight imaginable in the final.

* * *

GLEN ELLERSHAW, the versatile left halfback of the Brockton club for twenty-one years, on last yielded to the call of time, having played his last game on Saturday, when his team went down to a 4 to 1 defeat against Lynn Fosse. There are many who believe Glen has several more games left in him and are sorry to see him go.

* * *

THERE is talk of a club securing private grounds in Boston. Foer so often this is heard, but it is a cinch that the club that does will never lack support, and would prove to be a big factor in boosting the game among the schoolboys of now and the future.

PATRIOTISM.
WHADDAYAMEAN SPEED?

Jess Willard is a champion—he has his title clinched.

He drives his car both near and far and likewise has been pinched.

Jess Willard now can prove he is a wild and speedy guy,
But there are times, when boxing, he can prove an alibi.

"Hooray! Hooroo! Hurrah!" he cried, waving a flag. "I am for preparedness! I am going to march in the Preparedness Parade. Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue!"

"That is a noble sentiment," said an ancient stranger with an empty countenance and a little brown dog in his lapel. "Who," if I may ask, "is your Congressman?"

"You can search me. But what's that got to do with it? Hooray! Hooroo! Hurrah!"

"Do you vote?"

"Who? Me? No! They're all crooks. What's the use of me wasting my time to vote? Hooray! Hooroo! Hurrah!"

"But you are in favor of compulsory military service, are you not?"

"Whaddayamean? Have my sons join the army and make bums out of 'em? They'll fight when the time comes, and not before. Ain't I spending $15 in coal cubs a-dreamin' my car and taking a day off and neglecting my business to ride in the Preparedness Parade? And don't I stand up every time the orchestra plays 'The Star-Spangled Banner'? I'm all right's patriotism. I'd like to know who is. The Army and Navy Forever! Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue! Hooray! Hooroo! Hurrah!"

Speaking of preparedness, a spectator who sits within ten feet of a boxer's corner says a tip if he hasn't come prepared with a raincoat.

'One thing we cannot understand is that the fight promoters do not put a bathtub in each corner. It would save at least 8,456 gallons of water per fight.

Fighting Spirit Won Race for Harvard

By TOM THORPE.

Fighting spirit is the greatest asset an athlete can possess. Style, form, knowledge of the game and the display of headwork are valuable adjuncts to an athlete's make-up, but without an abundant supply of fighting spirit he generally lacks the necessary punch to put across the victory.

This was the condition of the Cornell crew in their race against Harvard on the Charles River, when the Crimson crewsters surprised their Ithaca brothers by putting up one of the grandest displays of true fighting spirit ever witnessed.

Coach Bob Herrick and his pupils surprised their most ardent supporters by the sensational performances they showed in all of their races Saturday. They were filled to overflowing with the quality of fighting spirit that always insures victory. From the moment Lieutenant Jonas Ingram, stroke of the Red, White and Blue crews on their way down the Charles River coures the Cambridge representatives outgamed their New York rivals. No better demonstration of what fight will do for a squad of athletes could be better staged.

Harvard, the defeated crew, was called upon to face Cornell, a former championship aggregation. The Johnnies had suffered defeat in every start to date, while the Ithacans came to Cambridge with startling stories of sensational trial performances on Lake Cayuga. Everything pointed to a complete victory for the New Yorkers.

But when the experts figured their totals they forgot to calculate properly the undaunted fighting spirit that Bob Herrick had injected into his crew.

It was fighting spirit worked up to the breaking point that enabled the Harvard crew to triumph over Charlie Courtney's pupils. It's the same spirit that has helped Percy Haughton to such an extent each Fall with his footballists. Once upon a time Harvard could not boast of this spirit, but since the advent of Haughton they have outgamed all of their rivals.

BILL UP DIRECTED AT RACING SERVICE

Washington, May 24.—A bill to prohibit transmission between States or into the United States from a foreign country, by telegraph, telephone, express or otherwise, of race track or other gambling bets, odds, results or advertising was reported today by the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

It would impose a penalty of two years' imprisonment or $1,000 fine, or both, for violation in the first instance and make prison sentences mandatory for all subsequent offences.

Autoist Hammond Hangs up Record; Coast to Coast

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 24. — Bobby Hammond, driving an Empire car, arrived at the City Hall yesterday after having motored from San Francisco in six days, ten hours and fifty-nine minutes. A Cadillac car recently covered the route in seven days, eleven hours and fifty-two minutes.

The route taken by Hammond was along the Lincoln Highway. About 3,384 miles were covered.

Hammond's car is believed to have been the first automobile to carry United States mail across the continent. A sealed mail sack was given him in San Francisco containing a letter from Mayor Rolph of that city to Mayor Mitchell.

Eighteen Will Compete For Pennsy

Philadelphia, May 24.—Although Coaches Orton and Robertson announced that eighteen men have been selected to represent Pennsylvania in the intercollegiates at Cambridge this week-end there are not more than six of these men who seem likely even to places and but two who have chances of winning events. Captain Ted Meredith will attempt to repeat his phenomenal performance of last year by again winning both the quarter and half mile. He is sure to be pushed to his limit in both, but it is believed by Robertson that he will lead the field at the tape in each.

Saunderson, who has tied twice with Foss of Cornell at 12 feet 10 inches in the pole vault, is the only other man with an even chance of winning. Tommy Lennon, who has been out of the last two meets on account of a strained muscle, is now in good shape and should give a good account of himself in the furlong. Kaufman is also a likely point scorer in this event and the century. Powell is expected to place in the pole vault, Bertoles in the broad jump and possibly Dorie in the shotput. The best that is hoped for Pennsylvania is fourth place.

TONIGHT at the Revere cycle track three of America's prestige pace-followers will meet in the semi-weekly race of the season. George Wiley, Victor Linart and "Bobby" Walthour form the trio down to do the work.

It will be the first crack Wiley has had at Linart since the Belgian wrested championship honors from him in this big race at the oval last season and the Syracuse flyer is hopeful of gaining revenge.

Like Wiley, Walthour also has a score to settle with Linart as both Americans have jammed in every minute of practice possible the past week in the effort to fit themselves for tonight's clash.

Manager Nat Butler intends to have a grand elimination contest in his semi-weekly runes, the headliners of which will appear in the three big events, the Brassard, the Golden Wheel and the Championship events.

Tonight's racing will start at 8 o'clock. The most amateur and professional events will come first, the motor-paced race being last on the card.

FERNROCK FIRST IN JAMAICA FEATURE

By International News Service.

New York, May 24.—August Belmont's chestnut colt, Fernrock, captured the Stuyvesant Handicap at six furlongs at Jamaica today. Fernrock was slow to begin, but Haynes soon brought him up and sped him well until the turn into the home stretch. Then he left Fernrock from sixth position to a hard decision over Mustard. Daddy's Choice was a good third, while Whimsy, the hot favorite, was unplaced on the finish. A ton of money was wagered on Whimsy and the books cleaned up on the race.

A drizzling rain fell most of the afternoon, but 8,000 fans braved it, the 2,000 regulars on hand sheltering themselves under the grandstand.

The Struggles of a Wife

Grace and Myra Reach the Summer Hotel. Both Very Tired

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Copyright, 1908, by Star Company

IT was early in August that Myra and Grace started for the mountain resort which was their destination.

Myra could not have explained how she had accomplished the many tasks she had set for herself before their departure. Her last bit of copying had been done in time for her typewriter to be boxed and shipped two days ago. She had gotten ahead with her writing so that she could spare a day for the journey and another for unpacking and settling in the hotel.

She had arranged with Lizzie to remain and keep house for Horace during the absence of the mistress. The good-natured girl promised to "do just as well as if the ladies was to be here."

"Have a good time, ma'am—you and Miss Grace," she urged in wishing Mrs. Webb good-by. "Sure a two of you look as if you needed a change. Though, to my mind, I think it's yourself that looks worse than Miss Grace—for all she's an invaleed."

"Sh-sh!" warned Myra, becoming sensitive with regard to her loss of flesh and color, and she did not want to have Grace wounded by that suggestion that her illness had worn on the mother. Though, for that matter, neither Horace nor Grace seemed to notice that she was more tired than was right.

A WAVE OF TENDERNESS

"Miss Grace has had a hard time, Lizzie," she remarked as her daughter came out into the hall. "But I am sure the trip will make her quite well."

Horace accompanied the travelers to the Grand Central station and saw them safely on the train before bidding them good-by.

"I shall be very lonely without you," he said in a low tone to his wife.

For a moment she clung to him, moved by his unwonted tenderness. All the love she bore him—love, the manifestation of which she had repressed for months, rushed over her. Her need of him, of his sympathy, of his encouragement, almost overpowered her. And he, noting her sudden emotion, recalled her to herself by speaking in a matter-of-fact tone.

"Be sure to put your tickets where they will be safe," he cautioned. "Telegraph me tonight how you and Grace have stood the journey." Then, again lowering his voice, "I will write Eli more to you about the middle of the month."

He kissed her before she could reply, kissed his daughter and hurried away.

When Myra had seen Grace comfortably settled in her Pullman chair, she seated herself, and, leaning back, closed her eyes. For a full hour she did not speak nor move. She felt like a beaten workout creature.

The housekeeper who leaves home for a visit of more than a few days' duration knows only too well the kind of speculations that chased each other through this woman's mind. Yet outwardly she seemed so unperturbed that a casual observer would have said that she was merely a tired woman resting peacefully.

After a while, glancing across the aisle, Myra saw that Grace was fast asleep. Rising, she threw a light shawl over the girl's shoulders, then, returning to her seat, again gazed out of the window until a porter announcing that luncheon was served in the diner awoke Grace to a realization of the fact that she wanted something to eat.

The sun was low in the west as the motor bus bearing the two women drew up in front of the huge hotel at The Heights.

A number of guests were seated in groups on the broad veranda. Myra tried not to notice how fashionably the women were dressed nor how travel-stained and worn she and her daughter must look.

The Webbs had written a month ago engaging their rooms for August. The one for Grace proved too large and airy. That which Myra was to occupy opened out of Grace's room, and, though not large, was lighted by a big window, near which was a table on which her typewriter could rest.

GRACE IS VERY TIRED

This was her first consideration after seeing that her child was comfortably located—to make sure that there was a place where she could write. During the past two years she had learned to put the thought of her own above all other matters except the welfare of her dear ones. It was natural that she should do this, for she felt that the success of this, for she felt that the success of her efforts and success depended that welfare.

Grace appeared in the doorway. She had taken off her hat and jacket.

"Don't you suppose we could have our dinner served up here this evening?" she asked.

"Certainly, if you wish it," Myra replied. "Are you too tired to go down to the dining room?"

"I am tired," Grace admitted, "but that is not the reason I don't want to go downstairs. It is because I am so dirty and messy, and our trunks can't be brought up for an hour yet, so we won't be able to dress. Didn't you notice how well all those women and girls on the veranda looked?"

Then, before her mother could speak, she hurried on, "Don't think, please mother, that after tonight I am going to be silly and shrink from meeting people—even if I am plainly dressed. But, really, I do look forlorn, don't I?"

"You look tired," her mother acknowledged. "And you shall have your dinner up here if you want it."

Yet when she had rung for a servant and ascertained what was the extra charge for meals served in one's room, Grace protested.

"Never mind!" she exclaimed. "I won't have you paying such an exorbitant price for a meal—when I'm mine. Now that I am here alone with you, mother, I am going to try to be sensible. So I'll begin now. We'll wash, brush our hair, and go down-stairs. Who cares how we look anyhow?"

Superfluous Hair Disappears Quickly

The safest and surest way to remove superfluous hair is to attack it under the skin as well as on the surface. Dr. Miracle acts on this principle, because it is quickly absorbed by the skin and also contains certain ingredients which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality—its life sustaining force. Imitations of Mrs. Miracle's wonderful depilatory have appeared, but are as worthless as paste and rub preparations. Genuine Dr. Miracle actually does remove hair from the surface of the skin. It makes it wonderfully easy to keep the skin free from hair, but Dr. Miracle helps you in more than name and you will avoid disappointment, disfigurement, you will get the only depilatory that contains a binding guarantee which entitles you to your money back if Dr. Miracle fails. $1.00 and $2.00 bottles at your druggist or direct, postpaid, in plain wrapper. Girl Workers Who Win Out

The Saleswoman and Her Progress

By JANE M'LEAN.

RAY sold silk stockings for the Gotham Manufacturing Company. Her qualifications for a traveling saleswoman were an amazing confidence in her own powers of discretion, a ready tongue and a seeming amount of what is generally termed sang froid, but is in ordinary terms just bluff. Ray was tall and not too slender. She had quiet brown eyes that were steady and dependable, and a rather stern manner of dressing. As Ray often said to her friends:

"It's really not what I wear, but the way I wear my clothes. This waist was two dollars, but I wear it over a pink slip and get away with it as though it cost five."

When Ray went to the Gotham Manufacturing Company and asked for a position, she was anything but sure of success. She had had no experience, but she wanted to sell silk stockings and she had made up her mind that she could. She had been asked if she had experience and had replied "no."

"But I can sell things," she had added.

"How do you know you can?" the man had asked, wheeling around and regarding her steadily.

"Because I have made up my mind to do it," she had replied.

For a long moment Ray's brown eyes had looked into the rather quizzical eyes of the chief buyer.

"Very well," he had said finally, "I'll take a chance." And Ray had been given her first commission.

"Get ahead of the Iron Heel and Toe," the buyer had admonished, "and your name is made. They have a very slick salesman on the route and we want the trade ourselves."

And so Ray had set out to get the trade of the smaller Western towns for the Gotham Manufacturing Company.

At first she had no success at all. Each place she had visited reported the trade already given over to the Iron Heel and Toe, and Ray, who had started out so confidently, was almost ready to report failure. She finally decided to skip her next town and to proceed first to one of the larger cities. Here she began the campaign. Her wardrobe possessed one very handsome costume, which she donned, with a soft-plumed hat. Then she took a taxi and set out for the largest department store in the place.

It took only a small amount of initiative to approach the buyer of Camden Brothers and ask if she could not interest him in Gotham hosiery.

The smart people wear nothing else in New York," she explained.

"We have the Iron Heel and Toe, madam, they are recommended as the best."

In vain she argued and at last with a pleasant smile she said good-by promising to call again.

"You may change your mind as well as your brand of stockings," she laughed.

When she left the store she thought hard. Then a brilliant idea struck her. It worked out like this:

The next morning Camden Brothers received a telephone call from Mrs. Leffingwell Gordon, the social arbiter of the city for a dozen pairs of silk stockings of the particular brand made by the Gotham Manufacturing Company.

And later they received another call and then still another.

When Ray called the next morning she was received with more attention. Camden Brothers not only ordered but complimented her on her business sense.

Ray smiled, but said nothing. Before she left she wrote a nice note of thanks to Mrs. Gordon and the other ladies who had helped her.

She felt that she was now on the road to success.

(The next article in this series will be called "The Seamstress.")

A Job of Crowing

To test the safety of the church steeple a country parson climbed it with a scaling ladder—a feat requiring no small amount of nerve.

He was proud of his achievement, and at a meeting of his parishioners described with a wealth of detail his feelings while aloft.

"When I reached the top and saw the huge golden weathercock gleaming in the sunlight, what do you think I did?" he asked.

An old farmer, who looked the picture of boredom, hazarded a guess.

"You cheated the weathercock," he said.

"What do you mean, sir?" sharply demanded the parson.

"Why, you did it out of the job of crowing," the farmer replied.

Caught a Tartar

The case had been long protracted, and was going none too well for the defendant. His counsel, therefore, had recourse to bullying methods.

One of the plaintiff's witnesses, a notorious old gabbler, was put in the box, his place being taken by an old plasterer.

"Have you ever been in prison?" asked the barrister.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness; "twice."

"Ah! And for how long, may I ask?"

"First time for an afternoon and one time for about an hour. You see, sir," continued the witness, taking advantage of the barrister's confusion, "I was sent to prison to whitewash a cell for a lawyer who had been robbing his clients."

Advice to the Lovelorn

ENJOY YOUR FRIENDSHIP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Has a man a right to enjoy the friendship of a girl and monopolize her time without ever thinking of marrying her?

I am twenty-two and have parents dependent on me. I have two girl friends whom I have known for years and we have the highest regard for each other. Now, I want your advice whether it is right for me to continue my friendship for them. H. L.

IT would be very unfortunate if a man are sensible and high-principled as you seem to be could not have girl friends. If ever real saltors come into the lives of these girls it will be easy enough for a boy as sensible as you to eliminate himself if need be or at least to make his position quite clear. Since there are two girls and you are interested in both, I do not believe any one can connect your name with either. Be sure you are man enough not to attempt to make love to either girl and to keep your relationship strictly on a basis of friendship. If you do this and remember that some one may come along and want to marry them at any time, and do not permit yourself to feel abused when it happens there is no reason why you should not go on with your friendship and get much from it besides bringing a great deal to it.

SEE HIM LESS OFTEN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My sister is going about with a young man of twenty. She is only a little over seventeen. My parents would like to know his salary. They claim by going out with him constantly she is losing chances. Now the question is, I hardly think it is right to ask a young man or give him any hint on what he thinks. Now what we really would like to know is, shall my sister continue discontinue being friendly with this young man. J. M.

BOTH your sister and the boy with whom she is going about are very young. I think your parents are simply actuated by the memory of the old world when they feel that a statement of his "intentions" is necessary. Such a demand is quite likely to spoil a happy boy and girl friendship. It would be wiser for your sister simply to see the boy less often.

Not an Example

"Johnny," said father, firmly, "you must go to bed now."

"Don't want to," replied Johnny, mutinously, sinking deeper into his chair.

"Oh, but you must, sonny," persisted father. "Don't you know that early to bed and early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise, my boy."

Johnny eyed the old man a while before answering. Then he said, with a wise shake of the head, "You didn't go to bed early when you were a boy, did you, father?"

Love Letters of Queens

Royalty Not Exempt from Tender Passion

HOW true it is that the "touch of Cupid makes the whole world kin" is proved by sheaves of letters, time-stained and breathing the faint perfume from dead centuries, in which one may still read with sympathetic eyes the passionate and tender outpouring of hearts that have long ceased to beat. The writers were cradled in palaces; many of them were royal crowns, and seemed as remote from sentiment as the man in the moon. But their letters show them as helplessly caught in the toils of love as any amorous ploughman or lovesick dairymaid.

When the Princess Amelia, the most beloved of all George III's daughters, gave her heart to the handsome and courtly General Fitzroy, her equerry, she poured out her love for him in a hundred letters with a fullness and freedom from all restraint which make her words burn and glow a century after she has been dust.

"Harry you, my angel dear, I really must and will," one letter runs. "I glory in our attachment. I dine after my dear Charles more and more every instant. Your dear letter! Oh, what a treasure! I shall keep it, and read it over and over every day. Pray don't alter in your manner to me in any way, my dear angel. Oh, my precious darling, how often do I say, would to God my own husband and best friend and guardian were here to protect and assist me, as I am sure was destined in Heaven. I should then have nothing to fear."

A few days later she wrote, "Oh, God, how I do love you! Each day and hour has endeared you to me. Accept the gratitude and affection of her who owes you everything, for ever your most affectionate friend and wife. I own I can never help praying and hoping a time may yet come when the Almighty may bless and join us in persons, as we are in hearts, ever inseparable. I have loved you, prized and esteemed you more every instant. God bless you, my own dearest love, and beloved angel. Ever on earth or in Heaven equally your attached wife and darling, A. F. R."

Even more unrestrained and passionate are the letters which Princess Sophie Dorothea, later the unhappy wife of the first of the Georges, wrote to Count Philip Konigsmarck, the handsomest soldier in Europe, with a reputation for courage won on a score of battlefields. When the Count was sent to Morea to fight against the Turks, she wrote to him in her grief: "Nothing can make your absence bearable to me. I am faint with weeping. I hope to pine by my life that no woman has ever loved man as I love you. In a truth, dear one, my love will only end with my life." Again, "If you love me," she pleads, "take care of yourself. I should die if any accident happens to you. But what joy when I see you again! It will be impossible for me to moderate my transports; I fear everybody will see how much I love you. It matters little, for you are worthy, and I can never love you enough."

And no less ardent was Konigsmarck's response to her passionate letters. "You ask me to reassure you of my love," he write. "I will never forsake you. So long as a drop of blood remains in my veins, so long as I draw breath, my heart is wholly yours. You are all my wealth, my treasure; I would sacrifice the world to kiss your divine mouth. I hate war and everything that takes me from your side. One favour I only ask from the gods—that I may be with you always in life and death."

Hard Hit

One of the dignitaries of the Church of Scotland was a minister of a remote parish before he leapt into fame, but was not considered a particularly eloquent preacher.

At his suggestion extensive alterations were made in the church, which had the effect of sweeping away considerable seating accommodation.

One day after the alterations had been effected he visited the church to see how it looked.

"What are you think of the improvements, John?" he asked the beadle.

"Improvements!" exclaimed John in disdain. "They're no improvements at a', Whaur are ye goun tae pit the folk?"

"Oh," said the minister, "we have abundance of room, John, considering the congregation."

"That's a' very weel the noo," retorted the beadle, "but what will we dae when we get a popular minister?"

It is truly remarkable how Cadum Ointment causes pimples to disappear. They dry up and fall off, leaving the skin soft and smooth. Cadum Ointment helps these annoying and disfiguring facial blemishes because it can be applied direct to the trouble, and its soothing, antiseptic and healing powers stop the itching at once. Cadum Ointment is equally good for rash, blotches, scaly skin, chafings, eczema, sores, eruptions, cuts, burns, ringworm, scabs, itch, tetter, etc. 25c.

Three Million Boxes Sold in France Every Year

In Our Very Wonderful World

In Ceylon the devil bird is a constant source of alarm. No one knows what species of bird it is, but throughout the whole night its cries are horrible and blood-curdling. The natives regard the cry of this mysterious bird as a sure presage of death.

On the desert of Gobi, which divides the mountainous snow clad plateau of Tibet from the milder regions of Asia, travelers assert that at night they have heard sounds high up in the sky, as of the clashing of arms and sounds of martial music. If travelers fall to the rear, or get separated from the caravan, they hear themselves called by name. If they go after the voice they get lost in the desert. Sometimes they hear the tramping of horses, and, taking it for their caravans are drawn away and wandering from the right course are hopelessly lost. The people believe that these sounds are produced by the spirits that haunt the desert.

The Irish banshee may be traced to the owls, as the description of the cry is so similar to that of the owl, which completes the identification. Most of the weird sounds that are heard in the air at night seem to have superstitious terrors, and are often magnified and altered by those who hear them.

Birds, from the ostrich down, are imitative. The ostrich, where he lives alone, is silent, but in a country where lions abound he roars. Why? Because for centuries, admiring the lion's roar, he gradually learned to roar himself. Among small birds, buntings imitate pipits, and greenfinches imitate yellowhammers. They seek their food in the Winter together, and they gradually steal each other's calls. The jay is an insatiable imitator. Some Jays will include in their repertory not only the cries of songs of other birds, but also the bleat of the lamb and the neigh of a horse. Even the nightingale imitates. In a nightingale's song it is sometimes quite easy to detect phrases he has borrowed from other birds.

The Verdict Was—

A young lawyer, not noted for intelligence, succeeded in getting a client acquitted of murder. Meeting a friend a few days afterwards the lawyer was greeted with warm congratulations.

"Yes," he said, mopping his brow, "I got him off, but it was a narrow escape."

"A narrow escape! How?"

"Ah, the tightest squeeze you ever saw. You know I examined the witnesses and made the arguments myself, the plea being self-defence. The jury was out two whole days. Finally the judge called them before him and asked what the trouble was.

"'Your honor,' one juror replied the foreman. 'Was the prisoner's counsel retained by him or appointed by the court?'

"'No, gentlemen, the prisoner is a man of means,' said the judge, 'and engaged his own counsel.'

"'I could not see what bearing the question had on the evidence,' continued the lawyer, 'but ten minutes later in the jury, and what do you think the verdict was?'

"'What?' asked his friend.

"'Why, not guilty, on the ground of insanity.'"

The [illegible] committee [illegible] issued [illegible]

"To [illegible] who [illegible] to help [illegible] dent, [illegible] Credit Union [illegible] Life [illegible]

"Many [illegible] workers [illegible] —not a penny [illegible] "to where they go [illegible] the hour of need" because [illegible] the people [illegible] and the needs of our dependent families, the [illegible] shield. [illegible]

"[illegible] how well the [illegible] suffer [illegible] a worker's [illegible] a loan [illegible] feared it is merely [illegible] to [illegible] family enslaved.

"[illegible] worthless, [illegible] a promise. [illegible] Massachusetts [illegible] Union was organized. It is the [illegible] effort to [illegible] relief for [illegible] [illegible] plan ahead.

FURTHER LOAN PLAN.

"Through collective effort, the credit unions provide [illegible] with funds to meet the crisis that faces them. It is a simple, sensible plan for making loans to those temporarily embarrassed.

"It solves the [illegible] problem by substituting [illegible] for [illegible] and wasteful methods. It gives [illegible] ability to [illegible] a start in business a small [illegible]. It not only supplies money but also help and advice.

"What is vastly more important, it encourages thrift. Thrift [illegible] a barrier against destitution [illegible] a shield against misery. That is [illegible] the need for relief.

"To insure the success of this [illegible] throughout Massachusetts, the sum of $50,000 is now sought by the Massachusetts Credit Union. Those [illegible] are invited to share in the merit of this work by contributing to the fund. May we have your help?"

CAMPAIGN WELL OPENED.

The [illegible] raised [illegible] for a Statewide campaign of education to spread the doctrine and benefits of credit unions as a cure for the present inefficient organization, and thereby successfully combat and encourage thrift and eliminate usury.

Great enthusiasm prevailed as the team leaders were called upon by Fred Vorenberg, chief of captains, for their accounts, reaching a climax when Leo S. Jolles, captain of team No. 8, reported the largest sum, $450. The next largest was credited to team No. 10, headed by Adolph Glessberg, $400.

As chairman of the general campaign committee, Nathan Sulzberger gave the workers a heart-to-heart talk, thereby setting a special ability for the success of the campaign resting upon each man. It was up to them to handle it in the good. Maxwell Cohen, president of the Massachusetts Mid-Interest Society, and S. M. Mard also spoke.

RABBIS ISSUE APPEAL.

Contributions thus far range from $1, the donation of a working man, who explained that he had felt the clutches of the loan shark, to $2,000, the gift of a donor who wants his name concealed.

To further the work the following appeal has been made by four of the most prominent Jewish rabbis of the city:

We know the work that is being done by the Massachusetts Credit Union and we heartily indorse it. Directed as it is by men of the Jewish faith, if successful it must reflect credit on the name of the Jew. For these reasons we trust that every member of the faith will respond generously to its appeal. Providing, as it does, for emergency economy, when financial needs are pressing, it gives assurance of replacing, in time, much of the charity of our day.

It is, therefore, constructive philanthropy in the best of sense.

Impossible To Get So Much Motor Car Value For The Money

WE FIND this is the attitude of many people who come into our salesroom —before they know anything about the Maxwell.

Not until the Maxwell is shown and demonstrated to them—until they sit in it and examine the finish—until they ride in it—or perhaps not until they drive it themselves, do they realize what a tremendous value is offered in the Maxwell car.

It is not unusual that Maxwell value should not be known to everyone, because it is uncommon to find such a car for a good margin more than the Maxwell price.

The Maxwell stands absolutely alone in a highly competitive field, for the amount of value it offers for the price.

Appearance—The lines of the Maxwell are decidedly attractive. There is no break in the contour from the radiator to the back of the car. The fenders are gracefully shaped. All metal parts are enameled or nickel-plated. The upholstery is deep and well-finished. From any angle it is a car that the owner can be proud of.

Motor—The engine in the Maxwell car is not equalled by any other four-cylinder engine of its size. And we know of larger and more expensive cars that have less able power plants. The Maxwell engine carries its load through mud and sand or over the steepest grades without a falter.

Quality—The materials in the Maxwell car are the best that can be bought and the workmanship that turns them into finished parts is no less excellent. It is only the large production of the Maxwell factories that makes it possible to put such quality of materials and workmanship into a car selling at the Maxwell price.

Economy — With its other attractive features, the Maxwell is a most economical car to own. Owners get 22 to 25 miles per gallon of gasoline and 8,000 to 12,000 miles per set of tires. And the car is so durably built that repair expense is negligible.

We are sure you want such a car as we have described the Maxwell to be. If you will give us a few minutes of your time we are sure we can convince you that the Maxwell car is an exceptional value. Come in today.

Howard Estabrook
Psychic Detective

Howard Estabrook as Payson Alden, the psychic detective, in "The Mysteries of Myra," solver of dread mysteries and fearless adventurer, creates a character as enchanting as a magician from the Arabian Nights, yet real as the man you meet in the street.

As Dr. Alden he has enriched the screen with a fascinating personality, by far the greatest of the many he has given to the speaking and shadow stage.

The Sixth Episode of

The Mysteries of MYRA

in its tempest of thrilling emotions is a supreme test of his command of an audience's interest and sympathies.

An actor of less intellectual force could not rise to the moments of great and strange power which make "The Mysteries of Myra" a wonderful tale, swift with adventure and action, yet carrying a charmingly told love story along most unusual paths.

Read this strangest of strange stories, in serial form, in the

and then see it in all the movement and grace of life on the film.

Produced by Wharton, Inc., under the personal direction of Theodore and Leo Wharton.

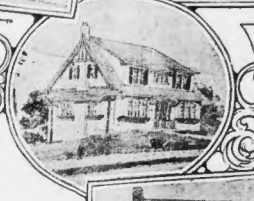
BROOKLINE - NEWTON - WINCHESTER



Solving the Problem of an Ideal Home

OUR METHODS---

Sincere and conscientious effort.

Skill gained through years of observation and experience—study and anticipation of the comforts and ambitions of the appreciative home buyer—acquisition of the best obtainable in high grade suburban home-sites.

Protection against the encroachment of undesirable elements—selection of most attractive and staple designs—purchase of highest quality materials from reputable establishments—employment of most efficient artisans and mechanics.

OUR RESULTS---

Well Located—Well Planned—Well Built Single and Two Family Houses—At Attractive Prices

Each and every house speaks forth the artistry of the architect, all exteriors being different and yet in wonderful harmony, with colonial type predominating.

Efficiency of our well equipped and experienced organization together with the magnitude of our operations enables us to sell at 10 to 15 per cent. lower than the cost of building to the individual.

Commendation of the buying public has already crowned our efforts. Our homes have been eagerly sought even before completion.

Pergolas, loggias, screened and glazed sun porches and sleeping porches have intensified natural beauties and attributes of location to a remarkable degree.

Beautiful Brookline Home-Sites

RUSSELL
COLUMBIA
KENWOOD STREETS

These lots were formerly a part of the Coolidge Estate from which Coolidge's Corner takes its name.

Convenience of access and excellent rapid transit facilities make this location ideal for the Boston business man.

Situated between two great boulevards and avenues of thoroughfare.

Entire neighborhood suitably restricted.

Most agreeable and pleasing surroundings.

There are twenty single and two-family houses in various stages of construction, some complete and ready for occupancy.

Prices—Singles from $9,500 up. Two-families $12,500 to $14,500.

Apartments to Rent

In the two-family houses, Russell street, 5 to 8 rooms, $50 to $75 a month.

Office on Russell street—take Harvard street car from Coolidge's Corner—off Harvard between Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue.

MASON TERRACE

High, healthy location, 260 feet elevation above the sea level.

Commands a magnificent view of surrounding country for miles and a vast panorama of 42 New England cities and towns, unequalled in suburban Boston.

This development is a wonderful illustration of the degree to which natural beauties and advantages have been intensified by skillful architecture.

Each lot contains 10,000 square feet of land.

Exquisite Homes Beautiful Location

All single houses—$9,000.

227 and 233 are practically ready for occupancy.

Office on premises, 250 Mason terrace.

UNIVERSITY ROAD

Surrounded by magnificent $50,000 estates.

Convenient to Washington street and Beacon street car lines.

A very pleasing development of beautiful two-family houses.

Office on premises, 125 University Road.

Careful Attention to Interior Detail Appeals Forcibly to the Appreciative Home Buyer

Spacious entrances, halls and stairways.

Living Rooms—Large and pleasant, panelled 6 feet in selected grades of mahogany, gumwood, sycamore, natural cypress and oak finished in gray. Beamed ceilings, especially designed fireplaces of tapestry brick, varied colors of Grueby tile add to the attractiveness. Built-in bookcases with glass doors are also provided.

Dining Rooms—Finished in white, panelled 5 feet 6 inches, with artistic design and plate rail.

Silver electric light fixtures are harmonized with the white. Grass cloth above the dado provides a pleasing contrast.

Butlers' pantries leading into

Sanitary White Kitchens, with electric working range equipped with broiler, oven and fireless cooker in addition to its four burners.

All selected oak floors throughout living portions of house.

Chambers—Finished in whitewood, artistic high grade papering, special care devoted to selection of electric light fixtures.

Bathrooms—Extra large, tiled floors, tiled walls, very newest, heavy built-in tubs, latest innovations in shower equipment. Large pedestal lavatories. Built-in medicine closets with large mirrored doors.

In the maids' rooms are also found modern bathrooms.

Choice Suburban Locations

NEWTON
COMMONWEALTH AVE.

New England's finest and most picturesque metropolitan boulevard.

All lots fronting on the avenue, corner of Hobart road.

Each contains 13,000 square feet of land, exceptionally fertile and adaptable to landscape gardening.

A location that promises certain and rapid enhancement in value.

Already becoming one of the most fashionable of suburban sections.

424 Commonwealth avenue is very nearly completed and is open daily for inspection.

An ideal home in a $35,000 neighborhood for $15,000.

WINCHESTER

The home town of the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth.

Mystic Valley, Parkway and Lakeview road.

Eight exceptionally desirable lots from 7,000 to 12,000 feet.

Location right on the Fellsway, overlooking Mystic Lake.

Rich in natural beauties and rare advantages.

Single houses will be built from $10,000 up.

3 minutes to Wedgemere R. R. station.

CHESTNUT HILL
COMMONWEALTH AVE. and HAMMOND ST.

Formerly part of the Dumaresq estate.

Situated a short distance beyond Lake street, 5c carfare and next to the beautiful grounds of Boston College.

Overlooking a vast expanse of surrounding country, including the Chestnut Hill reservoir and all the encircling pretty drives and parkways.

A spot of irresistible charm, pleasing both idealists and unromantic realists.

It is planned to construct wide streets through portions of this property, thus dividing into desirable lots, according to plans of capable landscape architects.

This will be an entire single house development and prices will range from $8,500 up.

Watch this grow into one of the most select, high grade settlements of distinctively artistic homes ever seen in the suburbs of any large city in the country.

SPOONER ROAD

In the beautiful Chestnut Hill section of Brookline.

Boylston street, Chestnut Hill car line.

10,000 feet lot with beautiful grove of shade trees.

National Censorship of Moving Pictures Would Be a Blow at Liberty

Congressman Dallinger of Massachusetts Has Rendered the Cause of Free Speech and a Free Press a Great Service.

CONGRESSMAN FREDERICK W. DALLINGER of Massachusetts has rendered the cause of free speech and a free press a great service in this country by the report that he and three other members of the Congressional Committee on Education have submitted to Congress on the question of censoring moving pictures.

For over three hundred years the English-speaking people made free speech, a free press and the control of the power of taxation the great issues that spelled LIBERTY to them. All three of these issues, on which arbitrary power took one side and the partisans of liberty took the other, have been settled in favor of liberty.

In Great Britain the freedom of speech and press has become an inviolable part of her unwritten constitution. In America we have made it inviolable, guaranteeing it in our written national constitution as follows:

> "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

The attempt to censor moving pictures involves precisely the same question that was at issue in the attempt to censor newspapers. The power in the newspaper which made the defenders of liberty fight to keep the newspaper free from censorship was the power to give the public information and to influence it on questions of public interest. The moving pictures have exactly that same power today. More than twenty million persons see moving pictures every day in this country alone. The pictures often have great political, social and moral lessons to teach, just as the newspapers attempt to teach the same things. Tyranny realized that the great danger to its power lay in the freedom of the press, in the ability of the press to tell the people what was going on and to stir them up to action. This is just what the moving pictures have power to do. "The Battle Cry of Peace" is a good example of the opportunity which is presented by moving pictures to arouse the public mind on a grave public question.

Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, who has just been nominated to the Supreme Court of the United States, has used the moving pictures very effectively to call public attention to the advantages of savings banks life insurance, by which men of moderate means may obtain life insurance more cheaply than it can be obtained from the old private insurance companies. The organization which opposes the exploiting of child labor has been using moving pictures to illustrate the degradation and wrong of child labor in our factories.

More and more this great new art is becoming useful in public agitation, like the newspapers and magazines, as the instruments for conveying information and influencing public opinion.

It would be un-American and highly dangerous to our democratic republic to place in the hands of any small body of men absolute power to tell the American people what moving pictures they should see and what pictures they should not see. It would inevitably precipitate into politics the entire moving picture industry, now the fourth or fifth greatest in the country. Knowing human nature and our political history, every intelligent American must realize that national censorship will raise up another great "special interest" to confound our politics. This fourth or fifth largest "special interest" in the country will follow the example of every other big special interest and attempt to control the Moving Picture Censorship Board, and having more power than nearly any of the special interests, it is fair to presume that sooner or later it will succeed. What then? The history of the censorship of the drama in England will then be repeated. A controlled board of censors will license questionable pictures, and that license will give these pictures currency in the different communities of the nation, where the local authorities would never permit them to be exhibited if a National Board of Censorship had not licensed them.

Moreover, the political power which controls the censorship board could do exactly as Walpole did in England. Walpole's administration was the most corrupt England ever knew. A distinguished playwright, becoming disgusted at the open venality of Walpole's political heelers in and out of Parliament, produced a play exposing the whole loathsome business. It created a furore. Walpole was dismayed. When he learned that another play of the same sort was about to be staged, he rushed through Parliament a bill establishing a national censorship of the theatres. He was not again disturbed and the theatres immediately ceased to be a means of arousing the public in matters of great public concern.

Why the Air Makes All Bodies Lighter Than Their Real Weight, and How It Is Able to Lift Mercury 30 Inches and Water 30 Feet Against Gravity

By Garrett P. Serviss

"WILL you kindly explain how it is that the air, as you say, makes us all weigh less than we would if there were no atmosphere? According to my book on physics, the earth's atmosphere weighs about as much as seventy-six centimeters of mercury. This weight presses upon the mercury in the barometer and causes it to rise or fall according to the density of the atmosphere. If the weight of the atmosphere so acts upon the barometer, how is it that this weight does not make us heavier instead of lighter? J. W. J."

AIR presses upon all bodies immersed in it equally in every direction—upward, downward and sideways. This is a property common to all fluids, whether the fluid be a liquid, like water, or a gas, or mixture of gases, like the atmosphere. Solids have not this property, but only press downward in obedience to gravity. But fluids, as well as solids, are affected by gravity, which draws them all toward the centre of the earth, thus giving them weight in proportion to their density.

In a fluid the effect of the weight is distributed in every direction, while in a solid, as I have just said, the effect is perceived only in a downward direction. Consequently, when a solid is immersed in a fluid the upward pressure of the latter counteracts a certain proportion of the downward pressure of the solid, and thus diminishes its weight.

The amount by which the weight is thus diminished depends upon the relative density of the solid and that of the fluid surrounding it, and is measured by subtracting from the total weight of the solid the weight of a volume of the fluid exactly equalling the volume of the solid. Any increase in the density of the fluid will increase its pressure, and any decrease will decrease it.

A gas will act in this way upon a liquid so that it cannot escape. This brings us to the principle of the barometer.

Mercury is a metal, which, in ordinary circumstances, is liquid instead of solid. If the mercury be confined in a tube, in such a way that the effect of the pressure of the air can be made evident, the air will tend to push it upward.

To obtain this effect, however, it is necessary to remove the air from above the mass of mercury that is being experimented with. This is done by creating a vacuum in the upper part of the tube containing the mercury. Then there is no downward pressure of the atmosphere on the mercury, but only a pressure tending to lift it. It will be lifted to a height in the tube depending upon the relative weight of mercury and air.

In a barometer there is a tank, or reservoir, of mercury at the bottom, so that the mercury can enter, but closed at the top, and previously exhausted of air, so that above the mercury in the tube no atmosphere pressure exists. Therefore upon the pressure of the air in the reservoir causes the mercury to rise in the tube up to a point where its weight becomes equal to the air pressure.

Experiment has shown that the height to which the mercury rises is near sea-level and in ordinary states of the atmosphere, about 76 centimeters, or say 30 inches. At that height the weight of the mercury is balanced against the pressure of the atmosphere.

But, as the latter varies to a slight extent through changes of density, due to variations of temperature, moisture, etc., the height of the mercury fluctuates a little up and down, according to circumstances. When the barometer is carried to the top of a mountain, or up in a balloon, the mercury falls, in proportion to the elevation, because the density of the atmosphere decreases with increase of height from the earth.

In a similar way the air presses upward a column of water, confined in a tube, with a vacuum above it, but since mercury is, bulk for bulk, rather more than 13 times heavier than water, the air pressure is able to lift a column of water about 33½ feet instead of 30 inches. It is upon this fact that the action of a suction pump depends.

The valve of the pump does not really "suck" the water upward, but it removes the air from the top of the column of water in the tube, and the pressure of the air in the well or other reservoir forces the water up the tube to a height where its weight becomes equal to the atmospheric pressure.

So, too, the common syringe is not filled by suction when the valve is drawn backward, but by air pressure. "Suction," as ordinarily used, is a word based upon a false conception. You do not suck lemonade through a straw; the air pressure drives it through. What you do suck out is the air in the straw.

Her Neighbor's Child

By William F. Kirk

"HE'S a terrible youngster!" said Mrs. McBride,
While gazing at Micky O'Flynn;
"He's spoiling my boy, for he can't keep a toy.
And the way that he swears is a sin.
I think that my Dinny will be a great man;
Do ye mind the grand shape of his dome?
He'd study and plan, the dear little man,
If Micky O'Flynn would stay home."

"I'm proud of my Micky," said Mrs. O'Flynn,
"He'll be a great statesman some day;
That's him alongside of young Dinny McBride
They're always together at play.
Sy Micky ain't wan of thim wanderin' lads
That's always a-plannin' to roam;
Sure he'd be a fine lad, as smart as his dad,
If Dinny McBride wud stay home!"

—Inklings and Thinklings—

By Wex Jones

Inklings and Thinklings: Speaking of putting pep into Shakespeare, why didn't Bill make Antony talk this way about Caesar?

Listen here—listen here—
All you countrymen and city chaps,
Lend an ear—lend an ear—
All you wise guys and you simple yaps.
While we are planting Mister Caesar,
Take it from me, boys, quite a geezer.
He was there—everywhere—
Like a bear—didn't care—
Though I do not dare to con him.
Tell me, men, who had it on him?
Had it on this old pin cushion—
Will the gents in back quit pushin'?
Oh, my—oh, me—
Some guy, J. C.

Whistle that Julius Caesar ra-a-ag!—Walter C. Hoban.

Death of Robert W. Wilcox

Millions of Men and Women Will Sympathize Deeply with His Widow, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in Whose Writings They Have Found Inspiration

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

ROBERT W. WILCOX, who died on Sunday night after a brief illness, was a man of high ability and character, universally respected. All of those that were included in his wide circle of friends, will mourn his untimely death—he was still a young man.

Millions of other friends will mourn with Ella Wheeler Wilcox in her bereavement.

Many who have found consolation in her writings will wish that they might console her now.

They will read with especial interest and sympathy, as we have done, the poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox that we publish here.

It was sent to us by Mrs. Wilcox from Short Beach, only two days before her husband's death. In a letter sent with the poem she spoke of her husband's recovery, with a hope that is now forever gone.

In her present grief and bitter despair, Mrs. Wilcox feels that she can write no more.

But sense of duty outlives the first bitter pangs of sorrow. And Mrs. Wilcox will realize that her duty to the world, and to the man whom she has lost, is to continue her work, adding honor to the name which he gave her.

Read the very beautiful poem that Mrs. Wilcox sent to us under the conditions which we have described.

THE FINISH

Out of that wonderful world where God is,
The Lords of Karma the path have shown.
And given us lessons to learn in bodies—
Oh, many the bodies our souls have known!
In gem, and blossom, and sentient being,
In dull cave dwellers and thinking man,
All things knowing, and feeling, and seeing—
This is the purpose and this the plan.

Forms are fashioned in wide world places
From flame and ether and common clay;
While egos wait in the high star spaces
Till the call shall come, which they must obey.
Oh, never a wish or a hope lies hidden
Of good or evil in any heart.
But back to earth shall the soul be bidden
To live out its longing, and play its part.

Grief and pleasure and joy and sorrow,
Out of old sowings we gather them all—
And the seed of today we shall harvest tomorrow,
When our souls come back at the karmic call.
Over and over the lesson learning,
Till, letter perfect, and meaning clear—
Back on the spiral pathway turning
We carry the knowledge we gathered here.

The thought of that last journey back to Him
When there is no more longing or desire
For anything but God left in my soul,
Shine in the distance like a great white flame—
I think the way will lead through golden clouds
Skirting the shores of seas of amethyst
And winding gently upward; past old worlds,
Where body after body was outlives;
Past Hells and Heavens, where I had my day
With comrade Spirits from the lesser spheres
And paid my penalty for every sin
And reaped reward for every act;
Past Realms Celestial and their singing hosts
(Where once I chanted with the cherubim)
Out into perfect silence. Suddenly
And all enveloping vast consciousness
Of long, long journeys finished; one more turn
Then glory, glory, glory infinite
And selfhood lost in being one with God,
The ray once more absorbed into the Sun.
The cycle done. ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Where to Stop in Education

By Charles F. Thwing

President of Western Reserve University

THE place to stop in one's education is marked only by the word "must." So long as opportunity permits, or duty insists, so long should education be continued. The longer it is continued the richer is its process, the more inspiring its promise, the more commanding its results.

The temptation to end education at an early age is strong in the vigorous boy.

This boy feels its drudgeries, rebels against its limitations, is blind to its usefulness. If he knew, he would be inclined to say with Shakespeare that "school" rhymes with "fool." This boy does not wish to learn. He wishes to do.

The parents, too, of small means, may feel that this strong boy of fifteen should make some contribution to the family exchequer. To such an intimation, either expressed or implied, the worthy son is not unresponsive.

Yet, despite such temptations, education, if it be at all possible, should continue. One can well measure his future financial possibilities by the degrees of his education. Of course, the rule is not to be pushed too far; but it does contain an important and suggestive truth. A survey, recently made, of a large number of farmers in the Middle West, shows that the average farmer earns for a year for his labor as follows: Those having a common school education from $391 to $742, those having high school training from $651 to $1,268, and those who are college-bred from $799 to $1,721. A similar application can be made to workers, industrial and commercial.

In fact, one can even further affirm that certain occupations are absolutely barred to a man poorly, or only partially, educated. To him the higher realms of the professions are closed. For these realms require the trained and educated brains, learned in books as well as in life.

For most men, five years given to education, between the ages of fifteen and twenty, multiply personal power by twenty; and for most men, too, an additional five years, between twenty and twenty-five, multiply the same personal power by one hundred over that possessed at the age of fifteen.
